

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

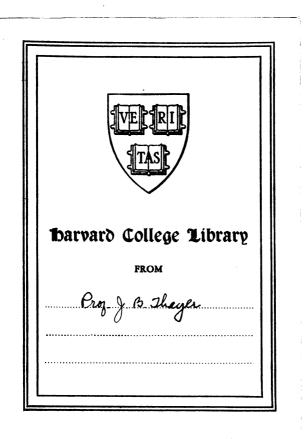

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

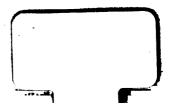

About Google Book Search

PREFACE.

THE Grammar now offered to the Public is the result of a conviction long entertained, that we pay in England far too little attention to the Arabic language. The importance of that language to the study of Hebrew, the living to the dead, can scarcely be overrated, for almost, if not quite, every Hebrew root has its place in Arabic Lexicons. The language of the Koran is also the sacred tongue of Mohammedanism throughout the world, and is the native speech of a very large proportion of the empire which Christian powers have saved from annihilation. To attempt the conversion of the Moslem subjects of Turkey to the Christian faith, is, as it appears to me, an imperative duty: but, in order to do this, we must be able to hold familiar intercourse with them. The absence of a compendious introduction to Arabic Grammar for the use of English students, is a serious impediment to the acquisition of the language. For those who desire to pursue their studies into elaborate detail, nothing better than De Sacy's Grammaire Arabe can be desired. It is full of research, is accurate and comprehensive. Its very size, however, renders it a tedious book for beginners, and it appeared to me possible to compress into a short manual the main principles of the language. The distinction between the Vulgar and the Written Arabic is not more than the distinction between the speech of a ploughboy and the essay of a philosopher; I have not thought it necessary, with some authors, to treat them as separate objects of study. In the preparation of the present work I have availed myself largely of the labours of preceding writers, and gladly acknowledge my especial obligations to De Sacy, (of whose book Stewart's is a poor abridgment,) to Caspari, and to the Grammar of the American Missionaries published in Arabic at Beyrout for the use of Arab boys. That I might have the advice of native philologists. I visited Cairo for the third time last winter, and obtained the assistance of Sheikh Ali Nady el Barrany, one of the Sheikhs of the El Azhar Mosque. My mode of proceeding was to translate portions of the manuscript into Arabic and amend or improve it according to his criticisms. He was pleased to bestow a high commendation upon the work, and made a special request that I would connect his name with it on publication.

Preface.

is commonly added, but this is merely a combination of J and l and cannot properly be reckoned as an independent letter.

The office of short vowels in Arabic is discharged by 3 accents, fethah, kesrah, and dammah.

- \leq fethah = short α or e; $l = long \alpha$.
- kesrah = short i; $\omega = \log e$.

 $\underline{}$ dammah = short u; $\mathbf{y} = \log u$.

Arabic is read and written from right to left.

I is equivalent to a long, but if I be accented with kesrah or dammah it assumes the sound of short i or u, as أَضْرِبُ Idrib, أَتَى outee, the serving as a slight journed breathing.

au, as بَيوم yaum. . أَيوم ai, as مَيوم lail.

At the end of nouns, and to distinguish their cases, the accents fethah, kesrah, and dammah are doubled, • an, in, soun.

This accentuation is called the nun et tanwin, and the nunnation in oun ⁵, in an ^e, and in in ,, indicates the nominative, accusative and genitive cases respectively, as N. رَجْل Rajouloun, Acc. رَجْل Rajoulan, Gen. رَجْل Rajoulin.

Note.—The \checkmark is followed by i, except when it is placed over \ddot{s} or the orthographic sign hamzah $\overset{\circ}{}$ (see below), or when it precedes \smile mute; thus we write, as above, آرجلاً in the Accusative, but رَجَلاً, حَكَمَةً above, مَعْلَى رَشَى , حَكَمَةً words of this last class do not admit a distinction of nunnation in the different cases.

Alif serves sometimes as a mere breathing, sometimes as a slight guttural, and is occasionally mute, as in the 3rd pl. masc. of the Past Tense; but when preceded by its appropriate accent, fethah, it usually has the sound a long, as أَنْضَال, dar, أَفْضَال, afdal.

ل ولت وف وش وس رس ز ور وز ون وی رج وث وت وب , ول ولت وف وش وس رس رز ور وز ون و t_{i} ون و t_{i} correspond to our b, t, th in 'thing,' j, d, th in 'those,' r, z, s, sh, f, k, l, m, n, h, respectively.

It may, however, be observed that in common usage and i are confounded with ت or م and with a or j respectively, and that in Egypt the Jim is commonly, but incorrectly, sounded as a hard g.

7 is a guttural h.

 $\dot{\tau}$ is a still stronger guttural, uttered, as it were, with a scratch in the throat during pronunciation.

o is an emphatic s.

is an emphatic d.

b is an emphatic t.

is an emphatic z.

 ξ is a guttural effort ordinarily expressing itself under the sound aa.

 $\dot{\xi}$ is a very strong guttural, with a scratch in the throat during pronunciation. It is represented by gh, with the addition of a slight sound of r.

is a k, as it might be pronounced by a person in the act of suffocation; the Copts drop the sound of k, and give only the nisus in the throat.

خ very frequently serves as the feminine termination. In this case it is surmounted by two dots \ddot{s} , and receives the sound of eh. When followed by a noun in construction, or an adjective in agreement with it, it assumes the pronunciation of t. Ex. بَيرَة حَلّب deeret Haleb; Essejadet el kebeereh.

 $\boldsymbol{\omega}$ and $\boldsymbol{\omega}$ are sometimes consonants corresponding to $\boldsymbol{\omega}$ and y, at others vowels.

The order of the letters was formerly different, and was formed according to a series of eight unmeaning words, the first of which, الجد Abjad, is the Arabic term for the alphabet. It was according to the Abjad that the letters received their significance as numerals.

E though a Lunar letter is generally treated as a Solar.

B 5

The difference between these two classes is, that if the definite article ال precede a Solar letter the sound of the J is merged in the succeeding Solar letter, which is thereby doubled. Thus ٱلتَّور (ٱلتَّرَاب are pronounced Et-turab, eth-thour.

قمر and تر, the first letters of شمس sun, and تر, and moon, exhibit the characteristics of these classes respectively: hence the terms Solar and Lunar.

The letters are also divided into Radical and Servile.

The Servile are those used to effect conjugation, inflection, and declension, and are nine in number: 1, (m, m), (m, m)

They are comprised in the word

The letters ای رو را are called weak letters. This weakness is of three kinds.

1st. They are rejected.

2ndly. They are interchanged or contracted.

3rdly. They are mute.

As the large majority of irregularities in Arabic orthography and conjugation arise from the changes incident to the occurrence of these weak letters, the following rules should be remembered.

It may be stated generally, that when a weak letter, itself accented, follows an unaccented letter, the accent of the weak letter is thrown back upon the preceding letter, and the weak letter quiesces.

يَسْيَر for يَسِير ; يَطُول for يَطُول Ex.

The weak letters are rejected in three cases:

lst. When a weak letter, itself quiescent, is followed by a jezmated letter, the weak letter is omitted and its place supplied by the corresponding accent.

From this rule the alif of union and mute terminal مصحت alif are excepted : thus we write مصحت in ف serving to unite the particle فانصر

Norre. The alif of union is an initial 1 united by Wasl to the preceding word. It only occurs in four cases.

تى . ال In the article (1)

(2) In Imperatives of the 1st form of the Primitive Triliteral.

(3) In the 7th form of Derivative Verbs.

رَإِثْنَانِ رَإِبْنَهُ رَإِبْنَةٌ رَإِبْنَةٌ رَإِبْنَ In the ten nouns (4) . .أَيَمَنْ رَإِمْرَانَا رَإِمْرَانَا رَإِسْمَ رَإِسْتُ رَإِنْنَانِ

Notwithstanding the exception made by Grammarians in the case of alif of union, it is scarcely a violation of the general rule; for though accented with Wasl it properly retains its vowel, which is sometimes written in addition to the Wasl.

2ndly. When the weak letter of the defective verb is jezmated, as المَ يَغْزُ المَ يَغْزُ , the final and ع being rejected.

3rdly. In the present tense of verbs beginning with whose second radical is kesrated, as يَعَد for يَعِد and in certain other verbs of the same class, as رَسَعَ

They are changed or contracted in four cases.

lst. و or و accented become i when their accent becomes fethah and they follow a quiescent letter, as مقرم for مقام. According to the general rule above stated مقام becomes مقام.

2ndly. When the weak letter is unaccented and the accent preceding it is changed, the weak letter is changed into the weak letter analogous to the preceding accent.

Note. 1 and ., and ., are analogous respectively. A similar rule applies to the orthographic sign Hamzah.

.مولَد for مدلِد ; سَاهَدَ Pass. of سُوهَد .

and ع occasionally remain after fethah and form a diphthong with it, as اليل , pronounced yaum, lail; or are pronounced as l, though not written so, as رَمَدِهُ رَعَلُوة, pronounced salat, ramaho.

3rdly. When j is the fourth letter in the inflection of Defective Verbs, the persons are inflected with z and not with j, except the accent preceding j be dammah.

4thly. When و and د come together and the first is quiescent they are changed into مَرْمِي as مَرْمِي for . كَوْى for كَيْ ; مَرْمُوْى

Of the weak letters $\boldsymbol{\omega}$ is weak, weaker, weakest.

ORTHOGRAPHIC SIGNS.

⁵ Hamzah, is a slight pause followed by a guttural breathing.

In Alif-hamzah $$, Hamzah accompanies the vowel attached to $$; and when Alif is changed by the rules of permutation the Hamzah remains attached to the $$ or $$, which replace $$. It not unfrequently happens that Hamzah, with the appropriate vowel, serves the office of $$, or $$. Medial $$, hamzated, is usually written without dots.

 Soucoun, or Jezm, indicates that the letter over which it is placed is quiescent, i.e. is not immediately followed by any vowel.

- Teshdid doubles the letter over which it is placed.

~ Madda serves the office of Teshdid to 1. When two Alifs coalesce, ~ is placed over the first; and Hamzah, with its appropriate vowel, takes the place of Alif-hamzah for the second.

~ Wasl is placed over the initial Alif to indicate that this Alif is united in pronunciation to the preceding word. In case that this preceding word terminates in a jezmated letter, the conjunction gives rise to certain changes of this Jezm into fethah, kesrah, or dammah. The student will find the numerous rules for these changes in De Sacy, but it is not necessary to burden his memory with them in the commencement of his Arabic studies. In ordinary writing the accents are for the most part omitted.

The accompanying Paradigms present in a tabular form the usual permutations of the weak letters.

Medial

..... for سَلَل - مدت - مدتر زیدناً for یدنو becomes ی or د Ex. هاناً for هَاناً. And Medial وية فأة for فية ءَيَّزِ۔ ام for المحن or الحس for المحق for المحقق المحقق المحقق المحقق المحقق المحق المحقق المحقق المحقق المحقق المحقق ŝ For euphony مَعَمَدَ مَعَمَدُ عَمَدَ مَعَمَدُ عَمَدَ عَمَدَ عَمَدَ عَمَدَ sometimes becomes أَا التقل for أعقد Ex. أعقد for القتل In a question eometimes أونبيكم Ex. أو becomes أو becomes أو sometimes and أَنَّهُ Ex. أَنَّهُ for أَنَدَ اللهُ عَلَيْ اللهُ اللهُ عَلَيْ اللهُ عَلَيْهُ اللهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ اللهُ

Weak Letters.

Note. Initial alif is still considered initial though it may be preceded by the inseparable particles 1, -, and hence is not affected by the ,و or ,ل ,ل ,ك ,ف accents of these particles. Thus, كأم الأب are written, tions in the case of compound words, as يومنذ , حينيذ . ثواب for ثياب Ex. Often e becomes e. . بطَاووس for طَاوس Ex. و becomes وو Frequently Final , must quiesce, and becomes l, as غزا for غزا in Triliterals. إستغزو for إستغزى as S, in Multiliteral words. Hence also ; عصو , عصوا , عصو for عصا . Ex. في become و and و و دو معطو معطوا معطو for معطى in Defective يغزو for يغزو in Defective

Verbs,

۔درور عدو Ex. و becomes و Final .

Final تَعَيِّرُ becomes . Ex. تَعَيَّرُ in Nouns of the form .

Final و becomes مَنْ يَى Ex. وَضَوَّ for رَضِيَ Final و Final و Final . .رَبَيْسٌ for رَبِيْسٌ Ex. يَي becomes يَي becomes يَي for رَبِيْسٌ for رَبِيْسٌ for . . أَوْلَى for أُولَى Ex. Ex. يَ or يَ for مَافِى Ex. . . حَافِي for حَافِى Final مَافِى Ex. يَ or يَ

Hence

But the proper names , is, retain .

Final تعميني Ex. ي في for تيميني for ي becomes ي Ex. وبيض for بيض for بيض Ex. وي becomes ي becomes ي for وبيض and often Medial ي for ي for ي for and often Medial ي for ي for ي for becomes ي for ي for becomes ي for j j for

If j or c accented and preceded by a vowel be followed by either c or j quiescent, the first of the concurrent letters disappears. If the preceding vowel be fethah, it is retained, if it be not fethah it is made to coincide with the accent of the lost letter.

for أُغْزى ; تَغْزِوِينَ for تغزين ; رميوا for رموا Ex. غازوون for غازون زاغزوى

Weak Letters.

The finality of the vowels \mathfrak{z} and \mathfrak{z} is not considered as affected by the affix of the termination $\overline{\mathfrak{s}}$, nor by that of the possessive pronouns.

Ex. عَزَادٌ ; مَرْمَيَةٌ for مَرْمَاةٌ ; عَدْووَةٌ for عَدَوَةٌ for عَذَوَةٌ for عَذَوَةٌ for عَذَوَةً for وَمَرِيةً ; غَزَوَةً quently written for .

The finality of 1 is usually regarded as affected by the affixed possessive pronouns or the termination \ddot{s} , but the rule is not absolute in these cases. Thus we may write either \vec{s} , treating the $\bar{1}$ as medial, or \vec{s} , treating it as final.

PARTS OF SPEECH.

The Arabs divide the parts of speech into three: $\nabla erb\left(\overset{\circ}{\underbrace{i}}_{\underline{j}}\right)$, Noun $\overset{\circ}{\underbrace{i}}_{\underline{j}}$, and Particle $\underbrace{\underbrace{i}}_{\underline{j}}\right)$.

VERBS.

The Verb is of two kinds, Primitive $({}^{\tilde{J}}_{\mu\nu})$, and Derived $({}^{\tilde{J}}_{\mu\nu})$.

Primitive Verbs are divided into Triliteral (ٱلْنَكَبْيَى) and Quadriliteral (آلرباعي).

The inflection admits a distinction of Gender.

The Triliteral Verb contains three Radicals in the 3rd Singular Masculine of the Past Tense Active, which is considered the Root.

If in the Root there be no duplication of letter, nor any of the weak letters ، و or د , the Verb is Regular, (مَالَمُ), as التَحَرَّم otherwise it is Irregular, (مَالَمُ).

Of Irregular Verbs we have the following classes :

1. Reduplicated (and), as .

*2. Hamzated (مَنْ مَعْوَزُ) on the 1st, 2nd, or 3rd
 Radical respectively, as i. أَخَذَ ; ii. إَسَالَ ; iii. إَنْ .

• The Arab Grammarians use the word it to express the changes produced by conjugation and inflection, and its three letters ters in the set of the set

Verbs.

We may observe that the true second radical of Concave Verbs is not 1 but j or a, and that in the Conjugation of a and b these reappear respectively.

In β and γ of Defective Verbs the true third radical is j.

Of the primitive Triliteral Verb there are six Conjugations $\begin{pmatrix} s \\ e \\ e \end{pmatrix}$ distinguished by the change or persistence of the vowel of the second radical. These variations are shewn by the Arab Grammarians on the word \cdot

	PRES.	PAST.
lst Conj.	يفعل	فعل
2nd	يفعل	فعل
3rd	يفعل	فعل
4th	يفعل	فَعِلَ
5th	يفعل	فَعلَ
6th	۔ ، مربر ی فعل	۔ فعل

C 5

By other Grammarians the order of the 1st and 2nd Conjugations is changed.

Of these Conjugations it may be remarked, that the 1st and 2nd include by far the largest number of Verbs. The 3rd is restricted to such as have a guttural for the 2nd or 3rd radical.

All the Conjugations except the 6th contain both Transitive $(\tilde{\mathbf{v}}, \tilde{\mathbf{v}})$ and Intransitive $(\tilde{\mathbf{v}}, \tilde{\mathbf{v}})$ Verbs. The 4th and 5th are more commonly Intransitive, and the 6th is exclusively so.

The accompanying Paradigm will shew under what Conjugations the Regular and Irregular Triliteral Verbs range themselves.

Many Verbs are irregular under more than one of these five heads; they do not however form a separate class, but partake of the various irregularities incident to their component radicals.

رَبِلِي :أَنَّتَى ،يَأْتَى : رَأَى ،يَرَأَى : كَوَى ،يَكُوي Ex. اقى رياوى زيل

ON THE CONJUGATION OF THE VERB.

The Verb has only two varieties of form for the expression of time. These may be termed the Past (فَعْلُ مَضَارِعُ) and the Present Tense (فَعْلُ مَضَارِعُ). The Present is also used to supply the place of a Future (فَعْلُ المُسْتَقْبُلُ). The 3rd Sing. Masc. of the Past Tense is considered as the Root (أَصَلُ), and is the part given in Arabic Lexicons.

Verbs.

تemphasis, as تَحَد نَصَرَة, He did assist, or recent completion of the action of the Verb, as تَحَد تَصَرَة, Prayer is just over; when prefixed to the Present it expresses either that the action of the Verb is customary or is rarely repeated.

generous man gives, or the miserly man gives.

are prefixed only to the Present, the سوف and سوف are prefixed only to the Present, the -، - بود -بود He will assist. سوف ينصر مسينصر. He will assist.

لان prefixed to the Past forms a Pluperfect Tense; prefixed to the Present an Imperfect. The Number and Gender of the Verb and the auxiliary must correspond. With the Participles both of the Active and Passive Voice كَانَ forms a Compound Tense exactly as in English.

Ex. كَنَتْ أَكَتْبٌ He had written; كَنَتْ أَكَتْبٌ. I was writing; كَنْتَ رَاكِبًا, Thou wast riding. The characteristics of the Past Tense are,

Ist. The last Radical of the 3rd Sing. is always accented with fethah, as نصرت Masc., نصرت Fem., except in some Defective Verbs where it is quiescent, as رمت Fem. (See Paradigm of Permutation of Weak Letters).

2nd. The 3rd Sing. Fem. and the other persons of the Past Tense are distinguished by affixes, as تصرف 3rd Sing. Fem. ; نصرف 2nd Sing. Masc. ; نصرف 2nd Sing. Fem.

In the Regular Primitive Triliteral none of the Radicals of the root is quiescent.

The characteristics of the Present are,

Ist. Its last Radical in the 3rd Sing. is accented with dammah, as تَبْصَر Masc., تَبْصَر Fem. Except in Defective Verbs, as يَرْمِي Masc., تَرْمَى Fem. (See Rules of Permutation of Weak Letters).

2nd. Its Persons are formed by prefix as well as affix. The prefixed letters are the four comprised in the عرب عرب عرب عرب عرب عرب عرب عرب عرب word انصر, as ينصرون as , أتنين 3rd Pl. Masc., mon.

In Primitive Triliterals the first Radical is quiescent, as تنصرون , 3rd Sing. Masc. Except in Tense and Mood.

Reduplicated Verbs, as مَدَّ , يَمَدَّ , and in certain Assimilated Verbs where the 1st Radical disappears, as يَسَعَ from و being lost.

If the Present Tense of Reduplicated Verbs be conjugated Triliterally the 1st Radical quiesces in this case also, as مد بمدن

The Present Participle is formed in Primitive Triliterals by inserting I between the 1st and 2nd Radicals, kesrating the 2nd Radical, and replacing the final fethah by the case accent, thus from نَصَرَ we have in the Pres. Part. آمر N. نَاصَر Acc.

The Imperative Mood $(\dot{y}, \dot{y}, \dot{y})$ is formed from the Present Tense. The servile prefix is rejected, the 2nd Radical retains its vowel, the last Radical is jeznated by the accent ', or by the rejection of terminal ..., except in the 2nd Pl. Fem. which retains the ...; and if the 1st Radical be jeznated, but not otherwise, \dot{i} is prefixed to the 2nd Persons of the Imperative.

- ، ، ، بیرمیی , ارم : ینصر , آنصر .

Where the 2nd Radical is dammated, the prefixed is dammated, otherwise it is kesrated.

The 2nd Person of the Imperative is the only one given in Paradigms; to form the 3rd or 1st Persons \mathcal{J} is prefixed to the corresponding Persons of the Present and the last Radical is jezmated.

The Arabs form the Subjunctive and Optative Moods by an alteration of the terminal accent corresponding to the effect of certain prefixed or preceding Particles.

The Infinitive is expressed by placing the respective Persons of the Present in sequence to the Verb of purpose or desire with or (though less correctly) without the intervention of the Particle

. نَرِيدَ نَرُوعَ or نَرِيدَ أَنَ نَرُوعَ, Ex. We wish to go, نَرِيدَ أَنْ نَرُوعَ

A third method preferable to either of the other two is to use a Verbal Noun of Action.

Ex. We learnt to write, أَلْكُتُبًا = We learnt to write,

The Verb has three Numbers; Sing., Dual and Plural.

The terminal dammah of the Present Tense, as given in the Paradigms, is liable to be affected by certain Particles prefixed to the clause. The verb, when preceded by some of these Particles, serves as a Subjunctive Mood. Of these Particles ten affect the final radical with fethah in place of dammah. They are as follows:

1. That, inferential. When this particle connects the two verbs by the statement of a mere fact, it does not require the second to be fethated; in such مور cases, however, ما أنه more usual.

- 2. Not, strong negative.
- 3. إنى Then, in sequence of a preceding statement.

4. Le That, in order that.

5 and 6. لِ آنجودِ , or, نَكَى = لِ .i.e. لِ after a negative assertion.

مَتَّى In order that.

8 and 9. in conveying an answer.

10. Je Or else, an alternative.

The ten Particles which affect the verb with fethah are of two kinds; the first four do so by their innate force, the last six by the force of the particle i implied in them.

Ex. أَبَرِبَ زَيْدًا I desire to strike Zeid. Good, I will enter the إَذِينَ أَنْجَلَ ٱلْجَنَّةَ Repent, that God may pardon thee. Visit me, and I will honour thee. I will keep you back, or else (= unless) you repent.

Nineteen Particles affect the verb with jezm. They are as follows:

- Not, strong negative.
- 2. In Not yet.
- 3, 4. الما, اللما Interrogatives of the two preceding.
- 5. J In command and entreaty.
- 6. ³ In prohibition and entreaty.
- 7. آن If.
- 8. In That which.
- ع Whoever.
- 10. Logo Whatsoever.

11.	اذما	Whenever.

12. ای Whoever, whatever.

13. متّى When.

نَدَ Whorever.

ت^{ين-} Whenever. اين

- 17. Land Wheresoever.
- 18. كَيْغَمَا However.
- 19. Iii When, in poetic language.

To these may be added some other indefinite relatives, as مَنْ بَكُل مَنْ which affect the verb with fethah in virtue of the ما and مَنْ contained in them.

These particles may also be divided into two classes; the first six affect only one verb; the rest, from 7 to 19, affect with fethah both the verb of the dependent and of the independent clause. $

The word الله as a compound of إن and has a similar force with the second of these classes.

Ex. يَعْرُو بَعْرُو بَعْرُو بَعْرُو بَعْرُو بَعْرُو لَعْرَبْ بَعْرُو لَعْرَبْ اللهِ اللَّ اللهِ اللهِ اللهِ اللهِ اللهِ اللهِ اللهِ اللَّ ال

In addition to the inflection of the Present and Imperative given in the foregoing Paradigms, the Arabs not unfrequently affix a terminal nun, single or double or or or ... This nun is called nun et toukid, رَنُونَ ٱلتَّوْكِيد, and is principally used in five cases.

1.	Tt is an emphatic affirmative. Ex. وَاللَّهُ لَانْعَلَىٰ
	I swear by God, I will do it.
2.	It is a forcible imperative. Ex. احملَن سَرِيرَكَ . Take up thy bed.
3.	لاً تَضَطَرِبَنَ It is a negative imperative. Ex.
قولُوبَكُم	Let not your hearts be troubled.
4.	هَلْ يَجِدَنَ أَيْمَانًا Ex. أَيْمَانًا It is interrogative. Ex. أَيْمَانًا Shall he find faith?
5.	It is optative. Ex. آليتَك تَنْسَكَنْ. O that thou wouldst devote thyself to God !
The	Conjugation of the Present with the affixed nun

The Arabs convert the Active Voice into the Passive by changing the vowels, and retaining the letters of the Active, or by using one of the Derivative Conjugations to be noticed below.

The Rule for the vowels in the Passive Voice is to change the vowel of the 1st Radical into dammah, and that of the second into kesrah in the Past Tense, Ex. فَرَبَ فَرِبَ فَرِبَ فَرِبَ Ex. فَرَبَ فَرَبَ مَرْبَ فَرَبَ مَرْبَ فَرِبَ Ex. فَرَبَ يَضَرِبُ عَضَرَبَ مَصَرَبَ مَصَرَبَ مَصَرَبَ Radical into fethah in the Present, Ex. فَرَبَ مَنْ بَعْرَبَ The Passive Participle is formed from the root by prefixing $\hat{\rho}$ and inserting $\hat{\rho}$ between the second and third Radicals, Ex. $\hat{\sigma}$ $\hat{\sigma}$. In changing the vowels regard must be had to the Permutation of the Weak Letters. The effect of this law of Permutation will be seen in the Paradigm of the Passive Voice. Pres.

Quadriliteral Verbs.

The use of the Active Voice is much preferred by the Arabs to that of the Passive, which in common language is somewhat rare.

It may be observed with reference to its construction that a Transitive Verb, which in the Active governs a Dative of the Person and an Accusative of the thing or a double Accusative, admits in the Passive an Accusative after it, thus: The king entrusted the command to his son, expressed passively would be ٱلسَّلْطَانُ أُوتِي إِبْنَهُ من السَّلْطَانُ أُوتِي إِبْنَهُ The king, his son was entrusted with the command.

OF THE REGULAR PRIMITIVE QUADRILITERAL.

For this Verb there is only one Conjugation; it has a fethah over the first and third Radicals in the Past, a fethah over the first and a kesrah under the third Radical in the Present, the second is jezmated in both cases, and the servile prefix of the Present ^{is} dammated.

Derivative Conjugations.

Note.—The foregoing Paradigm of Derivative Conjugations has been composed of the Derivatives of three Primitives to indicate that no Primitive has all these Derivative Conjugations in use; the large majority of Verbs have not more than three or four. Not unfrequently the Primitive is obsolete, and one or more Derivative Conjugations remain.

Ex. بَآَحَجَفَ , حَاجَفَ ; تَلَهَّبَ , أَلْهَبَ , رَلَّهَبَ , أَمَّحَفَ , إِنَّحَبَفَ , أَخَجَفَ , إِنَّحَبَفَ , أَنْجَفَ , إِنَّحَبَفَ , إِنَّ

REMARKS ON THE DERIVATIVE CONJUGATIONS.

The 2nd Derivative adds an intensive force to the Primitive, as تَطَعَّ, to cut into many pieces, or makes a neuter verb transitive, as عَظَّم, to make great, or gives a verb already transitive a doubly transitive sense, as to make to write.

The 3rd and 6th derivatives indicate reciprocity between two agents, as 3rd, سابق, to emulate, 6th, بتضارب to be struck mutually. The 3rd however has very frequently the sense of the Primitive, as مافر to travel.

The 4th has generally the same sense as the Primitive, where this is transitive; where it is not, the 4th makes it so, as is, to be weary, is, to make weary.

The 5th and 6th may be considered the Passives of the 2nd and 3rd forms, as تَكَسَرَ, to be broken to pieces, to be struck mutually.

The 7th is generally passive, as إَنْصَرَبَ, to be struck. The 8th has generally the signification of the Primitive, as إَفْتَرَسَ, to devour; it may however be passive, as إِنْتَصَرَ, to be assisted.

When the 1st Radical is من , ص , ظ , ط sthe ت characteristic of the 8th Derivative is changed into b, as إَضْطَادَ , صَادَ عَلَيْهُ الْمُعْرَبَ , فَسَرَبَ ; إِصْطَادَ , صَادَ as . إِنْكَرَ , ذَكَرَ ; إِنْكَمَ , دَعَا يُعَ , دَعَا يَعْ doubled, as Derivative Conjugations.

The 9th form is employed for colours, as إُسُودُ , it grew black, or infirmities, as إُعَوْجَ , he was erooked. This form is not often used, and has no Passive voice.

The 10th form very frequently has merely the signification of the primitive; it however is specially used to express a request, as محتمد , to ask assistance.

From the foregoing Paradigm it is evident that in the Derivative Conjugations the Passive Participle is formed from the active merely by changing the kesrah of the penultimate radical into fethah; hence, in succeeding Paradigms it will not be necessary to indicate more than one of these forms.

Three other forms of Derivative Conjugation are given in Grammars, but are rarely used. They are 11th, انصور , 12th, إنصور ; 13th,

For the sake of convenience in the Paradigms of the Irregular Verbs a single verb will be taken as the lst Conjugation, and the Derivatives will be formed upon it; such Conjugations as are not in use will be marked with an asterisk.

Of the Primitive Quadriliteral only one Derivative Conjugation is in frequent use. It is of the form of the 5th Derivative of Primitive Triliterals.

The Passive of this Derivative, as of the 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th Derivatives of the Primitive Triliteral where a Passive is admissible, is of the following form :

Verbals.

DERIVATIVE OF QUADRILITERALS.

The Passive of the 10th Derivative of Triliterals is of the form

OF VERBALS.

Under the head of Verbals may be ranged, 1st, Substantives, 2ndly, Adjectives, 3rdly, Participials.

Derivative Verbal Substantives are of two kinds, mimmated and non-mimmated.

^A The Mimmated Derivative Noun of Action of Primitive Triliterals, whether regular or irregular, is formed from the 3rd Sing. Masc. of the Present by substituting for the servile prefix, and accenting the 2nd Radical with fethah if the accent of that Radical be fethah or dammah, with kesrah if it be kesrah. The Arab term is itself an example of this formation. Other examples are ينصر help, from Pres منصر يرت بيرت بيرت يقوم بيرت position, مرت يسير course, مقام يعد promise, موعد

A terminal \ddot{s} is sometimes added to this mimmated masdar of the Primitive Verb. Ex. \ddot{s} , a laudable exploit. In the 3rd Derivative Conjugation this affix is normal.

The Mimmated Nouns of Action of the Derivative Conjugations are formed by substituting h for the servile prefix of the 3rd Sing. Masc. of the Present, and fethating the Penultimate Radical.

Ex. مَكْرُمُ 2nd Deriv. a noble act, from Pres. مَكْرُمُ 2nd Deriv. a noble act, from Pres. يُكَاتِبُهُ 3rd — a letter, ______ يُكَاتِبُ 3rd ______ a letter, ______ يقام 4th ______ a station, _______ يُسْتَغْفَرُ ______ 10th _____ pardon, _______ يَسْتَغْفَرُ

Non-Minmated Masdars of Primitive Triliterals are of very various forms; they may however be classed generally under three heads:

I. The second Radical is jezmated; the first is accented with fethah, dammah, or kesrah, and terminal دن or دن not unfrequently added.

Ex.	دن ہ ضر ب	striking,	from	ضرب
	قطع	cutting,	-	قطع
`	شِكْلُ	resemblance,	-	شَكَلَ
	۔ دکری	memorial,		ذَكَرَ
×	لوفان	deluge,	-	طَافَ
	•			G å

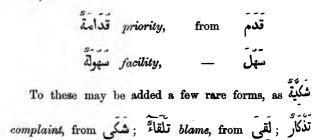

II. The second Radical is fethated; the accent of the first varies as in I.

III. 1, 9 or ω is introduced after the second Radical, which is fethated, dammated, or kesrated respectively. The accent of the first Radical varies.

Ex.	شمال	the left hand,	from	شَمَلَ
	ء قرار	stability,		۔∿ قر
	جلوس	session,		جلس جلس
	رَحِيلٌ	journey,		رَحَلَ

In all these classes a terminal \ddot{s} is not unfrequently found, as recollection, from بَيْنُونَةٌ ; ذَكَرَ evidence, from peculiar to Concave Verbs; قَلَّ entireness, from مَالِيلَى which is emphatic.

No Verb possesses more than a few of these Derivative Nouns of Action; the most common are of the forms نَعُولُ , نَعَالَهُ , نَعَالُهُ , نَعَالُهُ , نَعَالُهُ .

Transitive Verbs of the forms قَعْلَ and تَعْلَ usually construct their Nouns of Action on the model of رَنَعَلُ عَدَيَهُمْ to understand, وَتَتَلَ عَدَمَ ; وَتَتَلَ

Intransitive Verbs of the form نعل usually follow the model of جَاسَ ; تَعُوَدُ , as تَعَدَ to sit, تَعُولُ to sit, جَلُوسٌ.

Neuter Verbs like نعل usually form their Nouns of Action after the manner of فعُولَة or فعَالَة, as سَهْل to be easy, جَزَالَة to be liberal, جَزَلَ ; سَهُولَةً

Neuter Verbs of the form isd generally take the model of تَوَيَّ ، as قَرِعَ to be glad, قَرَعَ to be glad, تَعَلَّ to be glad, تَعَلَّ

When the Vowels of the preterite are different, different derivatives are formed from it accordingly. Thus from نوف to raise, is derived نوف raising; from نوف to be of a high station, زفعة or رفعة high rank; from رف to have a loud voice, we have زفاعة , رفاعة , raising of the voice.

The Derivative Noun of Action ordinarily indicates the action with reference to the subject of the Verb; it has, however, sometimes respect to the impression received by the object of the Verb.

Non-Minmated Derivative Nouns of Action of the Derivative Conjugations:

	Noun of Actio	n. Past.
 تفعلة	تَفَعِيلُ or	۔یہ ۔ 2nd فعل
	افعًالٌ د	3rd فَاعَلَ

	انْتِعَالُ	8th إفْتَعَلَ
	، افعلال د -	9th افَعَلَّ
	استفعال د	10th أَسْتَفْعَلَ

The Mimmated Nouns of Action of Primitive Quadriliteral Verbs follow the form of the Past Participle; the non-Mimmated are, of

The Derivative Nouns of Action of Reduplicated and Hamzated Verbs require in their formation the observance of the Rules of Contraction and of Permutation of the Weak Letters, but when these are observed they present little or no difficulty.

Non-Mimmated Derivative Nouns of Action of Assimilated Verbs.

Assimilated Verbs which lose the 1st letter of the root in the present tense usually form their nouns of action by dropping the servile letter and affixing terminal \ddot{s} , as مَعَدَّهُ, يعد (عَدَ عَنَ اللَّهُ عَدَةَ), يعد (عَدَ and the like. Many of them however resume the 1st radical in the noun of action, and thus are regular, as وَجَر from . Some have both forms, as وَجَر . Such forms as نَعَدَةُ (عَدَةُ عَدَةُ عَدَةَ . Such forms as نَعَلَ مَعَدَةً are considered to belong to the form نَعَلَ , the ^s being regarded as a compensation for the loss of the initial radical; all the other forms of Nouns of Action of Assimilated Verbs are regular, as روروع , روروع , ورود ا

Some Assimilated Verbs have peculiar Nouns of Action, as تَضَعُ and تَصَع from تَضَعٌ ; يَقَى ; يَضَع from تَقَوَى from رِيعَةٌ ; يَقِى , وَقِي and the like.

In all the Derivative Conjugations the Nouns of Action are regularly formed, due attention being paid to the Permutation of the Weak Letters.

Non-Mimmated Nouns of Action of Concave Verbs.

With the exception of the frequent Permutations of the Weak Letters consequent upon the forms of these Verbs, there is little irregularity in their Nouns of Action. The form فعلولة however is peculiar to them; in it the 2nd radical is always عمر منه عدم عنه فيبوبة from فعلول , بيان خاب , بان , دام

Likewise the Derivative Nouns of Action of the 4th and 10th Derived Conjugations have a peculiar irregularity. Thus they assume the forms إَسَتَعَامَةُ and أَتَامَةً. not and and and a sthey would be jf the regular rule were followed.

Non-Mimmated Nouns of Action of Defective Verbs.

In the forms of Derivative Nouns of Action where the 2nd radical is jezmated, no irregularity is experienced; thus, مَنْ وَمَنْ وَمَنْ

But in Triliteral forms if the second radical is accented with fethah, the third is always \mathcal{S} , and quiesces, thus in the form i فَعَلَ we have i, i, ic. Also, on a similar principle, i dots for i, ic. Where in the formation of these Nouns of Action two weak letters come together, the rule of Permutation must be carefully observed. Thus in the forms in the forms i dots i dots

As the Derivative Conjugations take in all cases \mathcal{L} as their final letter, so do the Nouns of Action derived from them. When the rules of Permutation are observed, other apparent irregularities are explained. Nouns derived from the Verb. 73

تَمَطَّ الْمِنْتَجَى from إِرْتِجَا^ت ; أَعْطَى from إَعْطَا^تُ for أَعْطَاتُ from أَرْتِجَاتَ ; أَعْطَى for تَوَانِي , تَمَطَّى for appears the veturns as التَّمَطِّى returns as

The formation of Derivative Nouns of Action from Doubly Irregular Verbs requires merely the accurate observance of the Rules of Permutation. Thus from

. شَىٰ comes شَوَى from ; تَوَة comes قَوِى

NOUN OF SINGLENESS.

By adding to the form i and accenting the j with of the Primitive Triliteral \ddot{s} , and accenting the j with fethah, a Noun is formed which restricts the signification of the Derivative to a single occurrence. Thus \ddot{s} , \ddot{s} 74 noun is used after adjectives to limit the quality or attribute they express, to one particular branch, as good to the taste, تَجِيدُ ٱلطَّعْمَةَ ; this is beautiful to the sight, هَذَا حَسَنُ ٱلنَّظْرَةَ

NOUN OF TIME AND PLACE.

In Assimilated Verbs the lost و is restored, as روعد وعد .

In Roots Concave in , the Rules of Permutation must be carefully observed. Thus from \vec{v} we have Nouns derived from the Verb. in Roots Concave in یقوم; in Roots Concave in عنام , یقوم regular, as مصدر , مار regular, as .

In Defective Verbs it is only necessary to observe the rules of Permutation; thus رَبْجَى رَيْجَى رَبْعَجى not , str.

Many of these Derivatives take a final ", as مقدرة, مقدرة in such cases seem for the most ; منارة , محكمة part to have a collective signification, as allo a dog kennel, a pastrycook's, a series of weeks, this meaning and silve this meaning may be latent. Thus and court, literally signifies a place of decisions, مَنَارَة minaret, literally a place where many lights are collected.

NOUN OF INSTRUMENTALITY.

The Derivative, signifying the instrument, has three forms, 1. مفتاع a cooler; 2. مفتاع as مفتاع a cooler; 2. a key; 3. aledo, as and cupping-glass handle.

76 Nouns derived from the Verb.

The peculiarity of this Derivative is the prefixed (" and the fethah of the 2nd Radical.

Some few of this class, signifying however rather a vase for containing something indicated by the Noun, assume the form مفعل or مفعل , as منعل jar, فمعل kohl pot.

By far the larger number of Arabic Substantives are classed under the head of Derivatives from Verba, after the manner indicated in the above rules. There is, however, a smaller class which, though the substantives composing it may frequently bear this relation to a verb as far as accent is concerned, must be rather considered as having given origin to the verbs connected with them than as having been originated by them. Such substantives are called Primitive. Examples are, $a_{i,j} = a_{i,j} a_{i,j} a_{i,j}$ $a_{i,j} = a_{i,j} a_{i,j} a_{i,j}$

From nouns both primitive and derivative, diminutives can be formed. The rules for such formation are very numerous: suffice it to say that the ordinary characteristics of diminutives are the introduction of ω after the second Radical, and the accentuation of the first Radical with dammah; the concurrence of weak letters with this ω gives rise to various modifications in the form of the diminutive.

Verbal Adjectives.

Ex. تَلَعَةٌ ;كَلَيْبٌ dog, Dim. كَلَبٌ castle, Dim. زَيْدِيْنِبٌ Zeineb, Dim. زَيْدِيْنِبٌ

VERBAL ADJECTIVES.

The following forms are enumerated as Adjectival Derivatives of the Primitive Triliteral : بَعَعْلُ , فَعَلْ , فَعَلْ , فَعَدْلُ , فَعَيلُ . فَعَلَنَ , فَعَلَنَ , أَفَعَلَ , فَعَالُ , فَعَالُ , فَعَولُ , فَعِيلُ . Examples. حَسَنَ noble, رَحِيمُ noble, مَرِيفُ beautiful, حَسَنَ dificult, مَعْنَ mendacious, أَكُولُ , compassionate, مَعْنَانُ voracious, مَكَرَانَ drunken, تَوَيْقُ nagry, عَضَبَانَ naked.

These adjectives are for the most part derived from neuter verbs.

Of these forms نعدیل is perhaps the commonest; it belongs especially to Verbs of the 4th Conjugation; أَعَرَبَ expresses colours or infirmities, as أَخْفَلُ red, أَخْفَلُ crooked, أَحَدَبَ humpbacked; أَعْدَبَ mental or bodily affections, as عَطَشَانَ thirsty, is penitent. H 5

Several Adjectives of the forms نَعُولُ and نَعُولُ derived from Active Verbs, admit either an active or a passive signification.

To these we may add the form رفعال, which indicates frequency or intensity, as أَكَالُ a great eater, أَعَارُ placable. Hence it is employed to denote trades, as - مَعَالُ a baker, i. e. one who frequently bakes; أُحَدَّ tailor, one who frequently sews, &c.

To the form is is occasionally added, and communicates a signification of great intensity, as extraordinarily wise. This Adjective ought perhaps rather to be considered as a Substantive, as it does not admit of a distinction of Gender.

Other intensive or frequentative Adjectives assume the forms مَغْعَلُ , فَعُولَةً , فَعَالَةً , فَعَلَ , فَعَيلُ , فَعَيلُ , مُفْعَالُ , مفْعَالُ , مفْعَالُ , مفْعَالُ , مفْعَالُ , though it may be questioned whether this last form should not rather be regarded as a Substantive Noun of instrumentality; thus a great talker = an instrument for word-making.

Beside the Adjectives derived from Verbs, the Arabs have a class derived from Substantives, or occasionally even from other Adjectives, called Relative Adjectives. Such are adjectives denoting origin, family, country, &c. Their characteristic is the addition of $\tilde{\boldsymbol{\omega}}$ to the end of the substantive whence they are derived, though the form of the adjective suffers various modifications, owing to the occurrence of the weak letters in the root and to the laws of euphony.

Ex. مَمَاوِقٌ heaven, مَمَاتٌ : أَرْضِيٌ land, أَرْضٌ heaven, ; مَكَةُ : مَلَكٌ king, مَلَكٌ : شَمْسِيٌ Mecca, مَلَكٌ : شَمْسِيٌ island, مَلَكٌ : مَكِيٌّ : مَكِّيٌ دَمُ : أَبُوىٌ father, أَبَّ : جَزَرِيٌّ tisland, .

Occasionally we find the form of termination رانبی as روزانبی ، جسمانبی a figurative signification attached, as material, enlight ening, not bodily, lucid, which would be expressed in the usual forms, جسمتی ،

The Relative Adjective is usually formed from the Singular Number, but in some instances likewise from the plural, as سَاعَاتِي a clockmaker, لَنَبِي a librarian. We may also call Relative Adjectives some which assume the form أَنَّاعِلُ , as they are derived from Nouns rather than Verbs, for example, لابن a milk dealer, a provision dealer.

From the Relative Adjectives, Substantives may be derived by the addition of \ddot{s} , which then indicate the quality expressed by the Adjective, as مَعْدَةُ \ddot{z} plural, \ddot{z} plural, \ddot{z} plural, \ddot{z} plural, \ddot{z} plural, \ddot{z} plural, \ddot{z} plurality, \ddot{z} plurality, \ddot{z} plurality, \ddot{z} plurality, \vec{z} plural, \vec{z} plu

GENDERS OF NOUNS.

The Arabs have two Genders, Masculine and Feminine.

Nouns become Feminine from two causes: I. Signification; II. Termination.

Class I. contains two kinds.

Those whose nature is necessarily Feminine, as Mary, عروسر Hind, مريم a bride, أم mother, sister.

Genders of Nouns.

2. Those conventionally Feminine, as names of towns and provinces, and parts of the body which are double, as مصر Cairo or Egypt, الشَّام Syria, يَدْ hand, يَدْ a foot, أَنْ an ear.

Class II. comprises Nouns which end

In s, as بنة a garden, ظَامَة darkness.

2. In T, non-radical, as كبريان pride, The field.

In z servile quiescent preceded by fethah, as i memorial.

the wind, and ریٹے the sun, ریٹے the wind, and أرض a few other words are used as Feminine Nouns.

The letters of the Alphabet though of either gender, are most commonly treated as Feminine, and a few other Nouns are common, as \tilde{y} spirit, \tilde{d}_{z} path.

Nouns not included in the foregoing enumeration are Masculine; and even amongst those Feminine by termination some exceptional Masculines may be found, as خَلَيْفَةُ khalif.

Feminine Form in Adjectives.

In Adjectives the Feminine Gender is usually formed from the Masculine by adding ة, as جَمِيلَةُ , جَمِيلَةُ . صَغِيرَةُ , صَغِيرَةُ , مَغِيرَةُ , مَغِيرَةً , كَوِيَسَةً

A similar change of Gender is effected by the same addition in certain Substantives, as $\frac{s}{2}$ a grandfather, $\frac{s}{2}$ - $\frac{s}{2}$ -

In Adjectives of the form أَنْعَلْ , not being comparatives or superlatives, the feminine becomes i , as i = 1, i = 1,

If the Adjective be a comparative or superlative, the Feminine is of the form آکبر as أکبر very great, زکبری ; magnificent, عظمی . Similarly, أَوَّلَ first, which represents أَوَّلَ or أَوَّلَ atter, for أَوَّلَ makes . أَخْرَى makes

، اخدى one, makes in the Feminine احد

Adjectives of the form نَعَلَنَ usually form their Feminine on the model of نَعَلَى as (نَعَلَى angry, نَضَبَى عَضَبَانَةُ بَضَبَانَةٌ drunken, سَكَرَى But not invariably, for سَكَرَانَ are also allowable; and in those of the form سَكَرَانَة this is the regular Feminine, as مَرْيَانَ .

Adjectives of the forms مَعْعَالَة , فَعَالَة , مَعْعَالَ , مِفْعَالَ , مُفْعَالَ , مُفْعَالَ , مُفْعَالَ , مُفْعَالَ , مُفْعَالَ , مُفْعَالَ , مُفْعَالً , مُعْعَالً , مُعْعَالً , مُعْعَالً , مُفْعَالً , مُفْعَالً , مُعْعَالً , مُنْعَالً , مُعْعَالً , مُعْمَالً , مُعْمَالً , مُعْمَالً , مُعْمَالً , مُعْمَالً , مُعْ

The forms نَعُولُ and نَعَدِلُ are sometimes variable and sometimes invariable in Gender. When the first has an active, or the second a passive signification, they admit a distinction of Gender whether the substantive be expressed or understood; when the first has a passive or the second an active signification, they only admit a distinction when the subject is understood. Comparative Adjectives.

DEGREES OF COMPARISON.

Comparative Adjectives are formed from the Positive by prefixing أ, jezmating the first radical and fethating the second, as تَعَنَى beautiful, أُسَتَن more beautiful; أَعْنَى rich, أَعْنَى richer.

The Feminine of these Adjectives of Comparison usually takes the form نَعْلَى . Thus we have نَعْلَى , كَبَرَى , from بَعْلَى , عَظَمَى . When the Superlative Masculine ends in ع the Feminine termination is بَعْدَ , according to the rules of Permutation, as nation is بَعْدَ , according to the rules of Permutation, as , Superlative Form of عَلَى , Thus عَلَى , the present world, is properly a Superlative Feminine of inferior, Comparative of . .

If one of the weak letters be introduced between the second and third Radicals in the Positive, it is retrenched in the Comparative, as جميل pretty, أجمل pretty, j prettier; great, أجمل greater. For the Comparative of good, the form حير is ordinarily employed, not أخير, which would be the regular form.

If the last letter of the Positive be و or l it is changed into ع in the Comparative, as حلو sweet, أحتى.

If the Positive begin with و or دى, and l is the second letter, و or د is retained and l retrenched, as is voide, يَابِسَ ; أُوسَعَ wide, وَاسِعَ

The Comparative however is invariable both in Gender and Number, whether the term of Comparison be expressed or understood, as تُمَ قَسَتٌ قُلُوبَكُمْ وَهِي كَا لَجَجَارَةِ أَو أَشَدٌ قَسَوَةً your hearts were hardened and were like stone, or even harder.

After کَالَّذِينَ مِنْ قَبْلِكُمْ كَانُوا أَشَدَّ قُوَّةً وَ أَكْثَرَ أَمُوَالًا magnetic states and some some added and a second so the manner of those who before you were greater in strength and more abundant in possessions, &c.

If the Adjective be derived from a Reduplicated Verb, and of the form نَعِيلُ in the Positive, the Weak Letter is dropped and the second and third Radicals coalesce in the Comparative, as آَقَلَّ little, آَقَلَ less; beloved, أَحَبَّ more beloved.

The Superlative is formed either by expressing the term of comparison, or by prefixing the Article to the Comparative.

As there are only certain adjectives, viz. the verbals derived from the primitive triliteral, whose Positives admit a change of form for the Comparative and Superlative, it is common in other cases to make the necessary distinction for these degrees by the words \vec{z} , \vec{z} ence to which the comparison is made, as الشد الحرب more warlike = stronger in war; أكبر الفهم more warlike = stronger in war;

gent = greater in understanding. The term of comparison is expressed by

Numbers of Nouns.

NUMBERS OF NOUNS.

The Arabs have three numbers, Singular, Dual, and Plural.

The Dual has only one form; it is derived from the Singular by affixing $\overline{\cdot}$. This rule holds for all Nouns Masculine or Feminine; in fem. Nouns terminating in \overline{s} , this \overline{s} is changed into $\overline{\cdot}$.

. أَمَتَان nation, أَمَّةُ , كِتَابَان book, كِتَابَ Ex.

If the last Radical be a weak letter, and have been changed or suppressed in the Singular, it reappears in the Dual.

Ex. تَجَوَانِ stick, تَعَصَوَانِ brother, تَعَطَّا وَ casting, رَامِ يَانِ.

In affixing the Pronouns to the Dual Number the final ن disappears, as عَصَوَاتَ. The same takes place when a Genitive follows in construction, as . كَلْبَا زَيد

Plurals are of two kinds, regular and irregular. The regular Plural Masculine is formed by adding terminal to the singular; the Feminine by the addition of terminal \vec{s} , or the substitution of \vec{s} if the Noun end in \vec{s} .

Ex. جَمِيلٌ ;كَاتِبُونَ voriting, Part. كَاتَبٌ ; جَمِيلُونَ تَقَلِّبٌ ;كَاتِبَةٌ ;جَمِيلُونَ voriting, Fem. Part. تَقَلِّبُ ; جَمِيلُونَ change, تَقَلِّبُ ; تَقَلِّبَاتُ Mary, مَرْيَمَ

If the Masculine Singular suffer contraction by the weakness of the last Radical, the Plural does so likewise, as موسّى ; رَامَجِنَ , casting رَامٍ ; قَاضُونَ , judging قَاضِ موسّى : موسّون , Moses

The generality of Feminine Nouns, whether substantives or adjectives, form their plurals regularly. Some few, however, take the masculine form; these are mostly such as have for their 3rd Radical Σ , or δ .

Ex. نَسْنُونَ year, نَسْنُونَ though such Nouns may also have the regular Fem. Plu., as سَنُواتٌ , سَنَةً

The restoration of the last Radical, where it is a weak letter, must not be neglected in the formation of the plural. Ex. أَنَوَّةُ ; سَمَوَاتٌ heaven, سَمَاً prayer, pronounced

The regular masc. pl., on the contrary, is almost exclusively restricted to proper names of men, to their diminutives, to verbal adjectives and participles, to superlatives of the form أَنْعَلْ , or to professional Adjectives, as أَنْعَلْ مَنْ أَنْعَلْ مَنْ أَنْعَلْ

Some few Masculine Nouns of foreign origin take the feminine form of plural, as أَغَا Agha, بَاشَا زَأَغُواتُ Basha, بَشَوَاتٌ.

The irregular, or broken plurals, as they are called, are the most capricious formation in the language. They can only be learnt by careful study of the dictionaries. De Sacy enumerates thirty-one forms. The following rules, taken from Delaporte's Idiome Arabe, indicate some of the more usual modes of formation.

 Substantives of three letters, the second of which is is form their plural by changing into ع and adding نار م م الله is neighbour, نار جيران a mouse, il is fire, نيران But دار house, makes ديران بيران 15

Numbers of Nouns.

2. Substantives of five letters, of which the 4th is a weak letter, form their plural by inserting 1 after the second; the weak letter of the singular becomes or remains $\boldsymbol{\omega}$ in the plural.

زَسَلَاطِينٌ Sultan, سَلْطَانٌ ;قَرَاطِيسٌ ,paper قَرطَاسٌ Ex. مِسَاكِينٌ ,poor مِسْكِيْنٌ ;مَكَاتِيبٌ ,letter مَكْتُوبٌ

3. The generality of Triliteral Substantives, in which a weak letter is neither second nor third, form their plural by the insertion of l or و before the ultima, as كَلَبُ dog, رَجَلُ ; قَلُوبٌ heart, وَجَلٌ ; كَلَابٌ ; كَلَابٌ .

Also in Triliteral Nouns whose second letter is دى the plural is frequently formed by the insertion of before the last radical, as بيت house, بيوت bird, مليور

4. Substantives of four letters none of which are weak, form the Plural by inserting after the second, as مقاصل chamber, مقارح section, مقاصل . When it terminal is added in the singular it is rejected in the plural, as تَعْاطر bridge, قَنَاطر .

Numbers of Nouns.

The greater number of words indicating flowers or fruits, or a part of an entire species, ending in š, form their plural merely by rejecting this š, as تبنّ a piece of straw, أي straw; أي a onion, أي a onion.

5. Professional Adjectives of which 1 is the second letter, form their plural by transposing the 1 to the third place, and doubling the second radical, as بَاتَبُ , بَاتَبُ a scribe; مَحَاكُمُ , حَاكُمُ ; a physician. Note however that the same forms, if not professional, form the plural regularly, as مَاتَبُونَ , رَحَاكُمُ the who writes, they who write; , حَاكَمُونَ , حَاكَمُ the wise.

6. Quadriliterals of which the last letter is رسی form the plural by inserting l in the third place, as chair, مَرَاسى.

Names of trades and relative Adjectives ending in ع form their plurals by adding s, as مَانَعِيَّ Shafite
 . مَوْفِيَةً Sofi, مَوْفِيَةً

Adjectives of the form أَنْعَلَ , not being comparatives or superlatives, form their plural for both genders on the mode of أَحَمَر as أَخَمَر red, Fem. أَحَمَر , Pl. بيضَاءَ vhite, Fem. أَبِيضَاءَ , Pl. بيضَاءَ

Adjectives of the form نعال commonly take the form تحرم , حَرَامٌ as in Pl., as مَرَامٌ مَ

As has been already observed, Comparative Adjectives do not vary according to number. The same is the case with Superlatives when the term of comparison is expressed; otherwise they vary as positive Adjectives.

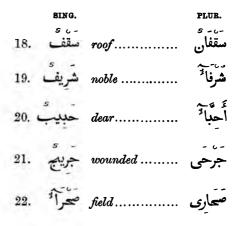

The following table, taken from Erpenius, and representing the more ordinary forms which the plural assumes, may be useful:

DECLENSION OF NOUNS.

The Arabic Noun admits three inflections of case: Nominative, Genitive and Accusative.

The form of the Genitive serves likewise for the Dative and Ablative.

Nouns are Triptotes, Diptotes, and Monoptotes, or Indeclinable.

The Regular Declension of Arabic Nouns is that of Triptotes, which includes all Nouns not excepted in the following cases:

In Triptotes the Nominative ends in \underline{s} , the Genitive in \overline{s} , the Accusative in Γ or \underline{s} .

Declension.

DIPTOTES.

All Duals and Regular Plurals are Diptotes.

Duals form the Nominative in أن , the Genitive and Accusative in بين as N. كَاتِبَان writer, Gen. and Acc. تَصْعَتَين N. تَصْعَتَان plate, Gen. and Acc.

Regular Plurals Masculine form the Nominative in رون, the Genitive and Accusative in يَن terminal, as N. مَوْمِنْدِينَ believer, Gen. and Acc.

Regular Plurals Feminine form the Nominative in مومنات , the Genitive and Accusative in آت, as N. مومنات believer, Fem., Gen. and Acc. مومنات.

A large class of Diptotes form the Nominative by accenting the terminal letter with dammah, and the Genitive and Accusative with fethah. Such are Declension.

Where these Adjectives form their feminine in is they are Triptotes, thus from أرصل orphan, Fem. أرصل they are Mase. N. أرصل, Gen. أرصل, Acc. أرصل

Appellative Nouns of the form أنعل may be either Diptotes or Triptotes, as N. أَجْدَلُ or أُجْدَلُ hanok.

 Adjectives ending in ان servile, whose feminine is not formed in ³, thus from مَغْضَبَان, Fem. مغضبًان, we have Masc. N. غَضَبَان angry, Gen. and Acc.

3. Substantives and Adjectives Singular, and Irregular Plurals ending in hamzah, preceded by Alif accented with maddah, as If the alif-hamzah be part of the root, they are Triptotes, as N. بردائر cloak, Gen. بردائر, Acc. بردائر.

4. Irregular Quadrisyllabic Plurals, of which the first two syllables are accented with fethah, the third with kesrah, as

5. Proper names of men, countries and cities, &c., as

NOM. GEN. AND AOC. عَثْمَانَ Othman قَبْمَانَ إِبْرَهِيمَ Abraham إِبْرَهِيمَ قَبْرَسَ Cyprus.....

Under the head of Diptotes may be likewise ranged nouns whose last letter is \mathcal{L} preceded by kesrah. Of these the N. and G. are alike, and end in ____. The Accusative ends in $\underbrace{\mathbb{V}}_{,}$, or in Derivatives from the Defective Triliteral in $\underbrace{\mathcal{L}}_{,}$.

MONOPTOTES.

When a Noun ends in او و or و , preceded by fethah, it admits no variation of case, as Nom, Gen and Acc. مَصَى rod, رَحَى mill, وَنَكْرَى good news, نَكْرَى memorial, شَفًا medicine, هَدَايَا presents.

Six Nouns when placed in construction make a distinction of case by a change of terminal vowel. These Nouns are written absolutely, $\underbrace{\overbrace{}}_{s}$ father, $\overbrace{}_{s}$ brother, $\overbrace{}_{s}$ father-in-law, $\overbrace{}_{s}$ mouth, $\overbrace{}_{s}$ a thing, $\overbrace{}_{s}$ endowed with; but when in construction the Nominative terminates in o, the Genitive in c, the Accusative in l. Thus we have in construction,

Nom. جَا^م أَبَوكَ أَخُوكَ ,حَمُوكَ ,فُوكَ ,هَنُوكَ ,نُومَالٍ Nom. جَام أَبَوكَ ,أَخُوكَ ,حَمُوكَ ,فُوكَ ,قَالَ مَالٍ Acc. وَأَيْتُ أَبَاكَ ,أَخَاكَ ,حَمَاكَ ,فَاكَ ,قَالَ هَنَاكَ , وَمَالٍ Gen. مَرَرَتٌ بِابِيكَ ,بِاخِيكَ ,بِحَمِيكَ ,بِفِيكَ ,بِفِيكَ مَالٍ

Note. The mim of is elided.

The above variation does not take place in the case of the affixed pronoun of the first person عن; thus we write in all cases

أَبِي ,أَخِي ,حَمِي ,فَمِي ,هَنِي

The Regular Declension of Triptotes to which all nouns, except those already enumerated, belong, is الله المَّاعَ ، رِجَالٌ ، كَبِيرٌ ، قَصْعَةٌ ، رَجَلٌ Nom. المَاعَ ، رِجَالٍ ، كَبِيرٍ ، قَضْعَة ، رَجُلٍ Gen. المَاعاً ، رِجَالٌ ، كَبِيرٌ ، قَصَعَةٌ ، رَخَلٌ

The difference of number does not of itself make any difference in the declension, provided that the conditions of a Triptote noun are fulfilled.

To express the Vocative case the Arabs use the Accusative or the Nominative.

The Accusative is used when the person addressed is not defined by name or by presence, or in compound expressions, as يَا رَجَلاً (O man, the man addressed not being pointed out ; يَا طَالَح جَبَلاً (O Abdallah ; يَا طَالَح جَبَلاً (O climber of the mountain.

The Nominative without tanwin is used when the person addressed is a single noun, either a proper name or an appellative which is specially pointed out, as or an appellative which is o man, the man being pointed out.

OBSERVATIONS ON DECLENSION.

1. The nun et tanwin is never admissible when the noun is preceded by the definite article. In that case the ^s, , ^e, become ^e, , ⁻, respectively; thus we have Declension.

from رَجْلٌ, from رَحِينَةُ, مَدِينَةٌ, from رَجْلٌ, from رَجْلٌ,

2. When a genitive case, definite either by reason of the article or of its own signification, follows one or more substantives placed in construction with it, it deprives the one or more preceding substantives of the nun et tanwin.

Ex. جَاءً رَسُولُ ٱللَّهِ the prophet of God came; رَأَيَت I saw the servant of the king of Egypt; عَبْدَ مَلَك مَصْرِ thou broughtest the book of wonders.

3. Duals and Regular Masc. Plurals, when followed by a substantive in construction with them, as the latter of two substantives, or by an affixed pronoun, lose their final ω .

Ex. نَصَرَتْ عَبْدًا زَيد I assisted Zeid's two servants; بَنُوا أَبِي my father's sons came.

K 5

Pronouns.

Ex. مَدِينَةُ ٱلْمَلَك is pronounced medeenet el melek; written and pronounced ebnet-ee.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

The Arabs have two kinds of Personal Pronouns, Separate and Affixed.

The Separate are as follows:

Singular. Fem. Com. Mas. هو 3rd Pers. ء، ۔ انت 2nd -ءَ۔ انا 1stDual. هما 3rd ء متنا 2nd ----Plural. دن هم آنتم 3rd 2nd1st

103

If في or هي are preceded by و or ف conjunctional, they sometimes lose their dammah and kesrah, as روهو نبي

The Affixed Pronouns serve as the oblique cases of the Separate Personal Pronouns, and also as Possessives. They are Singular.

Fem.	Com.	Mas.
هًا		3 3rd Pers.
ها ك		2nd
	ی _{or (} ی	when the object of Verbs.
	Dual.
	ino.	3rd —
	هما کَما	2nd —
	Plural.
د ته هن		د . هم 3rd —
د ته هن کن		مَّ 2nd —
	نا	1st

Affixed Pronouns.

Ex. عَلَيْهُ بَلْتَ upon him; عَلَيْهَا upon her; عَلَيْهُ to thee; حَارَهْماً concerning me; حَرَّبْنِي he struck me; تَرْهُماً the house of the two; رَأَيْتُهُمْ I saw them; كَتَابَكُمْ your book; عَلَّمْنَا teach us.

In attaching the affixed Personal and Possessive Pronouns to Nouns and Verbs, the following rules must be observed:

Nun et tanwin disappears, as أَخَذَ كتَابَك He took thy book. In the affix of the 1st Pers. to the Noun, the ultimate letter of the Noun is merged in the kesrah preceding مَعْدَ كَلَدِى as كَلَدِى مَعْد the thous seen my dog ?

2. Terminal ت becomes ت, as نَعْمَدِّي my favour increased.

3. The final ن of duals and plurals in nouns is rejected, as قَرَأَتْ كَذَابَاكَ I have read thy two books; قرراًت كذاباك thy sons said; تعروك thy helpers returned. In the 3rd Pl. Masc. of the Past the mute l is rejected, as تَدْيَرُونَ نَصَرُوكَ many helped thee. When the affixes of the 1st Pers., نا and نا are subjoined to the 2nd and 3rd Pl. Masc. of the Present, the terminal عدر of the Present may be omitted, as تأمروني you order me.

4. Nouns ending in alif-hamzah accented with maddah change the alif into و or c if the vowel accenting it be dammah or kesrah, thus from بَلَوْ سَارَ affliction, we have when the pronoun s is annexed, بَلُوْ سَارَ his affliction was heavy, بَلَدُ سَبَبَ بَلَدُه diffliction was heavy, بَيْن سَبَبَ explain the cause of his affliction.

5. When a Pronoun is affixed to the 2nd Pl. Masc. of the Past Tense a strengthening j is introduced between the terminal p and the affixed pronoun, as j you saw them.

6. The quiescent terminal ع of Nouns or Verbs preceded by fethah and having in pronunciation the force of 1 may be written 1 when a pronoun is affixed, as fixed, it is boy. This change is not imperative. وَمَلْهُ عَنَّاهُ مَا وَمَلْهُ عَنَّاهُ مَا وَمَلْهُ عَنَّاهُ مَا مُوَمَلْهُ مُعْتَاهُ مَا مُوَمَلْهُ مُعْتَاهُ مَا مُوَمْلُهُ مُعْتَاهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُاهُ مُعْتَعُامُ مُعْتَعُاهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُمَاهُ مُعْتَعُمُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُمُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتُعُمُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتُ مُعْتَعُهُ مُعْتُعُ مُعْتُعُ مُولُعُا مُعْتُعُمُ مُعْتُعُ مُعْتُعُ مُعْتُ مُعْتُ مُعْتُعُ مُعْتُعُ مُعْتُعُ مُعْتُعُ مُعُولُعُ مُعُ مُعْتُعُ مُعْتُعُ مُعْتُعُ مُعْتُعُ مُعْتُعُمُ

Affixed Pronouns.

7. When l or و quiescent precede the affix رى its kesrah becomes fethah, as حطّايّات my sins. If ي quiescent precede على a diphthong is formed, as ري upon me.

quiescent after dammah is changed into و and forms a similar diphthong; as مُسْلَمُي my Moslems.

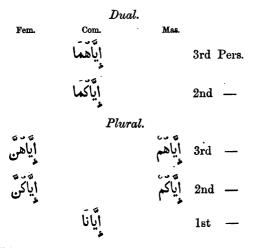

The affixes of the 3rd Pers. in all numbers change their dammah into kesrah when preceded by kesrah, or by عليه , بهم , قلبهم , حمارهما , كتّابه as sc.

There is a form of Pronoun used in the Accusative compounded of the unmeaning expletive in and the affixed pronouns. It is used for all persons and numbers, as Singular.

Fem. Com. Mas. ايام 3rd Pers. أياك 2ndایّای 1st

Strengthened Pronouns.

This form is used when an affix has been already added to the verb, or even when there is no affix, for the sake of emphasis, as in the phrase

Several other particles are used as supports to the affixed pronouns. In such cases these pronouns would be called in English grammar nominatives, but the Arabic Syntax refers them to the accusative case.

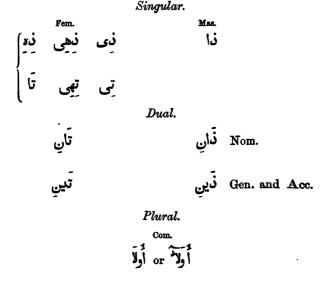

108 Demonstrative Pronouns.

When ن is affixed to particles ending in simple ر., it is strengthened by the addition of a second ر., as مَنّى ,مَنّى, مَنْي

Occasionally two pronouns are affixed to the same word; in this case the affix of the 1st person precedes the 2nd, the 2nd the 3rd.

Ex. أَعْطَانِيهُ he gave it to me; يَكْفِيكَهُم it will suf-

There are several variations in the declension of this relative, but they are not frequently used.

This relative does not admit any prefixed particles except , ن , ن , ن , the genitive is not often employed except after the prefixes ن and J. Where the construction is such as to require a genitive, the accusative of the relative is usually employed, and the genitive of the demonstrative or personal pronoun governed by a preposition supplied.

Ex. هَذَا هُوَ ٱلْرَجْلُ أَلَدْى مَرَرْتَ بِهِ this is the man by whom I passed. who, is of both genders and of all numbers. It may also be used without an antecedent in the signification of he who, she who.

Lo is similarly used for things without life.

Which, interrogative, is expressed by أَى , the feminine form of which is أَيْهَا. This interrogative relative governs the genitive, as أَتَى كَتَّاب. It is joined likewise with the various personal pronouns of the dual and plural, as أَيْهَمَا رَأَيْهِمَا رَأَيْهِمَا رَأَيْهِمَا

Note.—The form of these fractional numerals from 3 to 10 is usually in the Sing. نعل, in the Pl. always , in the Pl. always , as Sing. أَثْلَتْ , Pl.

The Cardinals and Ordinals from 12 to 19 are formed by adding the Masc. units to the Fem. form of 10 for the Masc.; the Fem. units to the Masc. form of 10 for the Fem. respectively. To express 11th a peculiar Ordinal is employed.

The decimal numbers 20 to 90 do not experience any change when used as ordinals. The same remark applies also to the hundreds and thousands.

ثلاثمن 30 40 20 ثَلَاتٌ مَأَية 300 100 400 200 کما ت ثلاثة آلاة الف 3000 1000 اربعة أءلاف 4000 2000

It is curious that the masculine cardinal numbers from three to ten have a feminine termination.

The cardinal numbers from three to ten may be regarded as substantives or as adjectives; in the former case they precede the substantive which they qualify, and it follows them as the latter of two substantives; in the latter case they follow the substantive, and agree with it in gender and case.

They are declined as Triptotes.

From 11 to 19 the cardinals are indeclinable, with the exception of 12, in which the unit is declined, as in بالنّا عَشَر and بالنّان thus we have Masc. N.

Gen. and Acc. إَنْنَتَا عَشَرَة Fem. Nom. إَنْنَتَا عَشَرَة, Gen. and Acc. أَنْنَتَى عَشَرَة The ordinals decline the unit when preceded by the article after the manner of Triptotes, the decimal remains indeclinable.

Numbers between 11 and 19 require the substantive qualified in the singular.

The decimal numbers 20, 30, 40 &c. are declined as Diptotes. N. عَشَرُونَ, Gen. and Acc. عَشَرُونَ. They are used as substantives. The substantive whose number they express follows in the accusative absolute, as عَشَرُونَ, رَجَلًا.

In Numeration the unit always precedes the decimal, as 23 مَتَوَعَشُرُونَ.

In the numeration of hundreds, De Sacy asserts that the unit is declinable. This is contrary to the opinion of other Grammarians, who write أَرْبَعْمَايَةً, أَنْتَحْمَايَةً, as if the unit were indeclinable. There seems no reason why the units should not be declined, and De Sacy confirms his opinion by other authors. Hence we may consider that أَرْبَعْ مَأَيَّة, زَلَاتٌ مَأَيَّة

مَأَيْنَ It is however remarkable that مَأْرَبَعَمَايَة , تَلَائَمَايَة should remain in the singular number.

ألف is a substantive, and when following the numerals from 3 to 10 is used in the plural, thus we say أربعة ألف ; ثلاثة ألف ; different from that of مأية

In the numeration of hundreds and thousands it is the custom to express first the thousands, then the hundreds, then units, lastly tens; or first units, then tens, then thousands, and lastly hundreds.

Ex. في سَنَة أَلْف وَتَمَانِي مِأَيَّة وَأَرْبَعِينَ in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty.

Distributive numbers are expressed by repeating the cardinal number, as أَرْبِعَةُ أَرْبِعَةُ أَرْبِعَةُ أَرْبِعَةُ in fours, or by a peculiar number of the forms فَعَالَ or مَوَحَدٌ مَوَحَدٌ مَوَحَدٌ مَا أَخَانَ أَحَادَ هُ مَرْبَعَ مَرْبَعَ مَرْبَعَ in fours, or by a peculiar number of the forms one by one; one by one; in fours. These distributive numerals are Diptotes. Relative adjectives may be formed in the regular manner from the cardinal numbers, as خمسی belonging to five; of two however the relative adjective is

Two-fold, three-fold, and the like, are formed by the addition of $\bar{\omega}$ to the first form of distributive numeral, as تُلَائتُ , ثُنَّا مُنَّ.

THE ARTICLE.

The Arabs have only one Article It is in-

The usage of this Article is much the same as that of our English the. Where, however, in abstract nouns and in classes we speak indefinitely, the Arabs prefix the Article, as البَرِّ يَرْفَعُ ٱلْأَمَةَ righteousness exalteth a nation, آَكَانُسَانٌ يَتَبَعُ الْغَرُورَ man pursues vanities.

When the Article is prefixed to a noun subject to tanwin, the tanwin is retrenched and becomes a simple vowel, thus رَجَلٌ indefinite becomes it the man.

The Article is not prefixed to proper names, which are considered as in themselves sufficiently defined.

The Article.

Also it may be observed, that where there is a succession of substantives terminated by a definite genitive case, and where all in English would be preceded by the definite Article in Arabic, the last only is preceded by i, thus, the camel of the sons of the desert is expressed, جَمَلَ بَنِي آلَخُرَا

If camel were indefinite it would be necessary to separate it by a particle from sons, thus we might say, جَمَلَ لَبَنِي ٱلْتَحْرَا

The Article is occasionally prefixed to a phrase, which is thus considered as constituting a single noun, but this usage is not common.

When the Article is prefixed to nouns beginning with a solar letter, the sound of the \int is merged in pronunciation with that letter, which is thereby doubled, thus is pronounced Esh shems.

The Article is connected by was! with the preceding word, and is even written thus when it is the first word in a sentence. Thus مَرْبَلُ , الرَجْلُ are correct.

Where the Article is prefixed to the genitive case of a Diptote it changes the final Fethah into Kesrah. Particles.

PARTICLES.

The Arabs divide particles into two classes, Separate and Inseparable. The second of these classes consists of eight single letters, viz. \vec{l} , $\vec{-}$, $\vec{$

To these p and z are usually added, but they cannot be properly included in the list as they are mere contractions for من and من

The Inseparable Particles are united as prefixes to the words or sentences with which they are connected.

Interrogative. It is prefixed to verbs, nouns, and also to other particles.

Ex. أَقَامَ زَيدُ has Zeid risen ? is Zeid at your house ? أَزَيدُ عَنْدَكَ followed by follow

Ex. تسوات عليهم النذرتهم أم لا تنذرهم it is the same thing to them whether thou warn them or warn them not.

М

is it Zeid who is at thy house أزيد عندك أم عمرو or Amrou? أفي البيت (do you mean) in the house? ة. I is also vocative, as أيوسف O Joseph ! ب. ب signifies, Place, or proximity, as اناً بالدار I am in the house, مرزت بها I passed near her. 2. Employment, as بَالصَلُوات he is at prayers. 3. Instrumentality, as بَعَلْم he wrote with a pen. 4. Expresses an oath, as ill by God.

5. Signifies, by reason of, at the price of, dc., as أَمَّ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ بِمَا كَانُوا life for life, ٱلْنُفْس بِآلَنْفُس they shall have a grievous punishment for their calumnies.

6. It is prefixed to a predicate, and converts the nominative into a genitive, especially in negative sentences and after إذا بقافل as not neglectful, إذا بآلرّجل behold the man!

7. It expresses the object of a neuter verb, so as to form a quasi transitive construction, as أَتَى بَالكتَابِ فَعَنْ مَعْدَى المَعْنَاتِ المَعْنَاتِ الْعَامَةِ مَعْدَى الْمَعْنَاتِ الْعَامَةُ مَعْدَى الْمَعْنَاتِ الْعَامَةُ مَعْدَى الْمَعْنَاتِ الْعَامَةُ مَعْدَى مُعْدَى الْمَعْنَاتِ الْعَامَةُ مَعْدَى الْمَعْنَاتِ الْعَامَةُ مَعْدَى مُعْدَى الْمَعْنَاتِ الْعَامَةُ مَعْدَى مُعْدَى الْمَعْنَاتِ الْعَامَةُ مَعْدَى مُعْدَى مُعْدى مَعْدى مَعْدى مُعْدى مُعْدى مُعْدى مُعْدى مُعْدى مُعْدى مُعْدى مَعْدى مُعْدى مُعْدى مُعْدى مُعْدى مُعْدى مُعْدى مَا مُعْمَى مُعْدى مُنْ مُعْدى مُ مُعْدى مُعْمَى مُعْدى مُعْمَ مُعْدى مُعْدى مُعْمَى مُعْدى مُعْمَى مُعْمَ مُعْمَى مُعْمَى مُعْمَى مُعْمَى مُعْمَى مُعْمَا مُعْمَى مُعْمَى مُعْمَى مُعْمَى مُعْمَى مُعْمَى مُعْمَ مُعْع is used merely as an oath, but always implying that God is invoked in such oath as تربي, رتالله by God; by my Lord, i.e. God.

٠س

The letter س prefixed to the Present gives it a Future signification. The particle سَوفَ is prefixed for the same purpose, but س assigns a more immediate, a more distant future.

تَجَعَ Ex. سَوَفَ يَأْتِي he will come; so also سَيَّاتِي he will come at a more distant period.

This letter is prefixed to verbs, nouns, and particles; it indicates sequence either of effect or time. It gives emphasis to the imperative, and is commonly prefixed to this mood after a conditional sentence, and is united, as a kind of buttress, to other particles. Sometimes it loses its sequential meaning, and is a mere copulative, like

Ex. لِيكُنِ ٱلْنُور نَكَانِ ٱلْنُور بَكَانِ ٱلْنُور Ex. النُور النُور المُ

Zeid came, and then جاً زيد فركب آلحصان mounted the horse.

قُلْ ٱلْأَنْفَالَ لِلَهِ وَ ٱلرَّسُولِ فَاتَقُوا ٱللَّهُ belong to God and the prophet; reverence God.

imay be prefixed to the verb with a signification equivalent to or else, as do not approach this tree or else you will be transgressors لَا تَقَرَبُوا هَدِهُ ٱلشَّجَرَةَ فَتَكُونُوا . مِن ٱلظَّالِمِينَ

Ex. وَإِنْ أَحَدٌ مِنْ ٱلْمُشْرِكَيْنَ إِسْتَجَارِكَ فَأَجِرَهُ Ex. مَنْ أَلَمُشْرِكَيْنَ إِسْتَجَارِكَ فَأَجِرَه one of the idolaters ask thee for help, help him.

ت.

like, is a preposition governing the genitive case, and is prefixed to nouns and independent pronouns; rarely to affixed pronouns.

Ex. كَرَجُل like a man, كَنَّا like us. United with it forms an adverb, as كَمَا as, كَمَا is pleonastic, like the likeness of.

بلٍ.

1. \bigcup is prefixed to Nouns as the sign of the dative, and as a preposition signifying because of, for the sake of, or expressing an oath with wonder.

Ex. I Fraise be to God.

Note. \bigcup becomes \bigcup when prefixed to all the affixed pronouns except of the 1st Pers. Sing.

М 5

Ex. لِي , لَنَا , لَكَ يَ اللَّهُ لِكَذَبِهُ ا صَرَبَتَهُ لِلَّادِيبِ I beat him for the sake of instructing him.

هلًا by God.

When J is prefixed to the Article it causes a contraction, as in the instances already given. لل becomes الل

2. ل is used pleonastically with the vocative in calling for help as يا لزيد; and as expressing the predicate, particularly when إنَّ اللَّهُ لقَادِر has been prefixed to the subject, as إنَّ اللَّهُ لقَادِر and as forming the apodosis to a conditional sentence, as أَكُومَتَكَ as a conditional sentence as if thou camest to me I would honour thee.

3. \bigcup prefixed to the Present forms the 3rd Pers. of the Imperative, and all the persons of the Subjunctive, as لَيَكْتَبُوا , لَيَكْتَبُوا , لَيَكْتَبُوا , لَيَكْتَبُ that he, thou, or I may write. that he, thou, or I may write. لَكَتَبَ , التَكْتَبَ , المَيْكَتَبَ , لَيَكْتَبَ

وَعَلَى ٱللَّهِ فَلَيَتُوَكَّلِ ٱلْمُومِنُونَ let the faithful trust in God, i.e. I wish that they would so trust.

و couples nouns and sentences; it signifies merely and; as أَنَا وَ أَنْتَ I and thou, أَنَا وَ أَنْتَ we eat and drink.

2. It expresses an oath, as وَاللَّه by God.

3. It signifies with, and then governs the accusative, as مَالَكَ وَ زَيداً what hast thou to do with Zeid?

4. It is equivalent to whilst, and then throws the verb into the subjunctive, as لَا تَأَكُلُ ٱلسَّمَكَ وَ تَشَرَبَ ٱللَّبَنَ thou shalt not eat fish whilst thou art drinking milk; or to though, and is loosely added with a verb in the present, as تَسَمَعُونَ عَنْهُ وَ أَنْتَمَ تَسْمَعُونَ turn not away from him (God), though you hear his commands.

ADVERBS.

In special forms of Adverb the Arabic language is scanty, but the deficiency is amply supplied by the power of adverbializing. The accusatives of all substantives and verbals may be used adverbially.

Ex. آبنا by day, لَيلاً by night, رَعَبَة anxiously, أياخلا on the right, تَعَمَالاً on the left, يَعِينًا within, أبدا much, أبدا for ever.

The following list of common Adverbs may be useful: Place: تَنَ يَنَ اللَّهُ عَنْ اللَّهُ عَنْ اللَّهُ عَنْ اللَّهُ عَنْ اللَّهُ عَنْ اللَّهُ عَنْ اللَّهُ اللَّ

Adverbs.

INTERROGATIVE ADVERBS.

i (see above under Inseparable Particles) and مَلْ are simple Interrogatives; is prefixed to the first word of the sentence, and may be used in all cases; but مَلْ cannot be employed when the accusative precedes the verb, or when i, or i, or the disjunctive follow.

iit. perhaps, is used either as expressive of multitude or paucity, as,

رَبٌ رَجُلٍ كَرِيمٍ لَقَيتَ I met but few generous men. ارْبٌ رَجُلٍ قَائِمٍ رَأَيْتَهُ I saw many men standing. انْدَ perhaps, expresses a hope or a possibility, as الله يَرحمنا ferhaps God will have mercy upon us, i.e. I hope he will.

رَعَلَّكَ , رَعَلَى admits the affixed pronouns, as رَعَلَّكَ , رَعَلَّكَ , مَعَلَّى

Why, for what reason, is expressed by إلمَا وَلَمَا وَلَمَا وَلَمَا وَلَمَ اللَّهُ وَلَمَا وَلَمَ مَعْ

Negative interrogatives are formed by prefixing | to negative particles.

AFFIRMATIVE ADVERBS.

is the ordinary form of affirmative أي نعم yes; نعم but jeives greater force. In reply to a call is used as equivalent to yes; what do you want? yes, by Him, إى وَنَّ surely, is a form of oath = إيرة i. e. God.

is used also with other oaths, but وَٱللَّه not alone as an affirmative.

NEGATIVE ADVERBS.

y, Lo are simple negatives. Lo is used either with the present or past tense; y is used with the present as expressing a single negation, with the past likewise when لاً جَدْفٌ وَلاً صَلَّى a negative alternative is required, as he neither blasphemed nor prayed. It is also used for the negative imperative, or as preceding nouns and expressing the absence of a whole class.

دة that, expressing a mere conjunction of sentences, as أريد أن أكتب as أريد أن اكتب

In this sense other particles are either prefixed to it or added after it, as أَلَى أَنَ until the time that ; عَلَى أَن أَن يَالُونُ أَنْ لَا on the condition that; أَنْ لَا ; that-not. It is sometimes purely expletive, as أَن إِلَيْ عَصَالَ cast down thy rod. Adverbs.

if, as إَنْ تَكْرَمْنِي أَكْرَمْكَ if thou honourest me, I will honour thee.

From this sense of if, if frequently appears as a negative in conditional sentences, especially when followed by \mathcal{H} , as the wicked are not in any إِن ٱلْكَافِرُونَ إِلاَّ فِي غَرُورِ the wicked are not in any thing but a delusion.

my recompence de إِنْ أَجْرِى إِلَّا عَلَى الَّذِي فَطَرَبِي my recompence depends wholly on him who created me.

This negative meaning is ascribed to in such sentences by Arabic Grammarians, but it is a question whether it may not be a simple expletive.

In such a phrase however as if I knew أَوَ مَتَاعَ إِلَى أَدَرِى لَعَلَّهُ فِتَنَةً لَكُمْ أَو مَتَاعَ إِلَى حِين whether this is a trial for you or a temporary respite, we may suppose an ellipsis = may I die if.

although, لَيْن as if.

In such phrases as حيث إن where, أن is merely expletive.

نَّنْ that; a strengthened form of أَنْ and used to give support to other particles prefixed or affixed, as well as in the simple sense of أَنَّ as if that he, or simply he; أَنَّ so that; أَنَّ no doubt that; as if that. j forasmuch as; أَنَّ vou. In interrogative sentences this particle is often preceded by أ and followed by j the sentence then takes the form shewn in the following example:

are you the men to enter-a peg on which to hang a sentence, as the إِنَّمَا ٱلْمُومِنُونَ ٱلَّذِينَ إِذَا ذَكَرَ ٱللَّهُ وَجِلْتَ قُلُوبَهُمُ believers who when God has been mentioned, are of reverent hearts, dc.

To these Adverbs may be added أَنَّ Oh, or that is to say; God forbid; رَبَّمَا sometimes; حَاشًا وَ God forbid; especially; تَضَلَّا never; تَضَلَّا still less; مَوْضَ never; يَفْضُلُا how; تَعَلَّ would that; إَنْ together; لَه behold; أَمَوْنَا أُمُونَا behold.

I properly signifying but, is used to express emphasis at the commencement of a sentence.

OF CONJUNCTIONS.

Of i and j we have already treated. Of i it may be remarked that it is often used merely lest the sentence should fall to pieces for want of connection, and that though it implies sequence, that sequence is frequently one of contrariety.

لاً that not, composed of أن and the negative آلاً. ان in order that not. composed of إنَّ and الآ, unless.

or else; it forms the second of two alternatives either after an interrogation or a plain declaration; it appears in the strengthened form \int_{0}^{∞} .

Lol now in respect of.

أو either, or. When or is disjunctive and is equivalent to unless, أَو requires the subjunctive, as لَتَنْلَنُكَ I will kill you or, i.e. unless you become a Moslem.

J. But.

either adverb or conjunction, as it is used independently, and likewise to couple sentences.

in order that; لَكَيلًا , كَيلًا in order that not. in order that not. لَكَنَّ in order that not. it but; لَكَنَّ receives the affixed pronouns. if not.

PREPOSITIONS.

The number of prepositions is small; they are as follows:

in , عَدَا , عَدَا , حَاشًا , عَدَا , حَاشًا , حَاشًا , عَدَا , حَاشًا , مَا فَتَعَبَّر , أَلَّا , مَدا , مَا ف originally verbs and governed the accusative; this construction is still allowable; the last is properly the accusative case of the noun عَبَر difference.

in, either of place or time.

upon, of physical or of mental superposition, as عَلَى دَينَ إلَيكَ on the ground; عَلَى ٱلْأَرْضِ to thee is upon me; أَيدًا زَيدًا take Zeid upon you, i.e. into your care.

ا عَلَى likewise signifies against, as خَرَجَ عَلَى he went out against me.

نَّكَ Concerning, as مَعْلَكَ they asked of your عَنْ

N 5

Apart from, as عَنِّى عَنِّى عَنَى عَنَى After, but as a consequence, as تَحَرَّبُ عَنْ جَيَال the war of Wayel produced woe after many generations.

Since, as نَوْمَ ٱلْصَحَى لَمَ تَنْتَطَقَ عَنْ تَغَصَّل she slept all the morning and had not resumed her girdle since she undressed.

is sometimes used as a complement to a preposition, and indicates side, as مِنْ عَنْ يَمِينٍ from the right.

and من are frequently combined with the relative pronoun مما , and then assumes the forms مما , عماً concerning which, from which.

in this last sense may be an abbreviation of عند, which being properly a noun signifying side or position, is used as a preposition in the sense of near or with, as عندى with me = I have; with you = thou hast; with him = he has.

لَدًا – لَدُ – لَدَ – لَدَنِ – لَدَنَ – لَدِنَ – لَدَنَ – لَدَن مند near, are properly nouns indicating the commencement of a period; when that period is not yet terminated they are followed by the genitive, otherwise not.

.from مِن

Point of departure either of time or place, as from the beginning to the end; من ٱلبَد إلى ٱلإَنتَهَا
 he went from the country.

Origin, as in composition or partitive division, as مَرْكَبٌ مِن ٱلنَّفْسَ وَ ٱلْجِسَدِ as أَلْنُفُسَ وَ ٱلْجِسَدِ as أَلْنُفُسَ وَ ٱلْجِسَدِ as posed of soul and body.

إَجْتَنِبُوا ٱلرَّجْسِ مِنِ ٱلأَوْتَانِ avoid the abomination of idols, i.e. resulting from.

أَخَذَ مِنِ ٱلدَّنَانِير he took some gold pieces. مِنِ ٱلنَّاسِ لَا يَوِمِنُونَ some men do not believe; we may even say, مِنْهُمُ equivalent to a part of them, or some persons.

It appears to be an extension of this partitive signification that is used with the genitive singular in negative or interrogative sentences in place of the nominative or accusative, as

مَا جَأْنِي مِنْ رَجْلٍ no man came to me. أَكْتَبْتَ مِنْ مَكْتُوبٍ

ألله he has incurred the wrath of God.

The deficiency of actual prepositions is supplied by the facility which the language affords for using every noun absolutely in the accusative case, and so converting it into a preposition, thus, فوتّ above, is a quasi preposition formed from تحول the upper part, حول around, from حول the circumjacent parts. So of many others.

is adverb, conjunction, and preposition.

As an adverb it signifies even, and produces no effect on the following word, as مَا تَعَرَّ الْقُومْ حَتَّى ٱلْمَشَاةُ the people came, even the walkers أَكَلْتَ ٱلسَّمَكَةَ حَتَّى رَاسَهًا I ate the fish, even its head.

As a conjunction signifying time, it exercises no influence upon the following verb, as يَشْغَلُونَ حَدَّى يَتَعَبُونَ they work until they are tired. If it has an illative sense, in order that, it then requires the subjunctive, as يَشْغَلُونَ حَدَّى يَتَعَبُوا they work that they may be tired.

As a preposition it signifies up to a certain limit, as far as, as طَرِيقِهِمْ طَرِيقِهِمْ they came to the end of their path.

All prepositions and quasi-prepositions govern the genitive case.

الع expresses surprise. وَيَلُ alas / is properly a substantive, and admits the additions of the pronouns after it, as وَيلُ لَك alas / to thee; وَيلُ لِي woe to thee.

ا alas is prefixed either to nouns or to sentences. The noun may follow in the nominative, as وَا زَيْدُ Zeid; or either the single noun or the termination of the sentence may be affected by 1 or الم as أو زيداء وا زيداء

In cases where confusion might arise from the addition of this final الماء, or even, according to some grammarians, where there is no danger of such confusion, l is changed into و when preceded by dammah, into when by kesrah, as وا غلامهو alas! his slave; وا غلامكيد ; alas! this slave; to avoid ambiguity between the forms غلامك , غلامها ماله غلامك ; thus made into vocatives.

alas! for him who digged وا من حفر بير زمزماة the well Zemzem.

Interjections.

In a vocative formed by prefixing $\frac{1}{2}$ to an accusative followed by the pronominal affix of the first person, the $\frac{1}{2}$ is frequently dropped, as $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{2}$

, which is properly a verb, is used as an interjection expressing admiration or approval, as your helper; O noble helper, noble aider that he is!

SYNTAX.

FIRST CONCORD.

The Verb agrees with its Subject in Person, as نَحْنَ ضَرَبْنَا we struck.

When a relative clause is added to a pronoun of the first or second person, the verb of that clause is not unfrequently put into the third person, as يَا أَيَّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ أَمَنُوا إِذَا لَقِيتُم ٱلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا زَحْفًا فَلَا o ye who have believed, when ye have met unbelievers face to face in fight do not turn your backs upon them.

If the subject consist of two persons or more, the verb agrees with the most worthy, as آناً وبطرس كَتْبَنَا I and Peter wrote, جَيَّدُما لَنَتَ وَ مُحَمَدٌ جَيَّدُما Mohammed came.

If the Subject precede the Verb, the Verb agrees with it in Gender and Number. From this rule are excepted inanimate Feminine Plurals, which require the Verb in the Singular.

Ex. زيد راج Zeid went. م مريم قَالَت Mary said. the men eat. the pigeons fly. صنی کی۔ the rivers flow. الانھار تجرِی

If the subject be singular and immediately follow the verb, the verb usually agrees with it in gender and always in number.

If the subject do not follow the verb immediately, the verb usually remains in the singular masculine, unless the subject be a rational feminine.

If the subject be dual and follow the verb immediately, the verb agrees in gender, but not in number; if words be interposed, the verb remains in the masculine, unless the subject be a rational feminine.

If the subject be an irregular plural and follow the verb immediately, the verb usually takes the form of the singular feminine.

If, however, the subject be a regular plural masculine or a proper name, it is a vulgarism to use the feminine; the masculine singular is then employed; but where these plurals are of a different form from their singulars,

ο

as in the case of words like إبن , بنون , they are regarded as irregular, and the verb is placed in the singular feminine. The singular masculine may even be retained for the verb when the subject is an animated plural feminine.

EXAMPLES.

محمد محمد محمد محمد محمد Mohammed said. الإمرة the woman came. ترجال the men wrote. أنومن كما آمن السفها lieve ?

the children of Adam said. قَالَتْ بَنُوا أَدَمٍ the writers came.

متحقق معتد . the Zeids, i.e. the men bearing the name Zeid, passed.

the women lied.

When the subject is a collective noun and precedes the verb, the verb is ordinarily plural, as First Concord.

وَ لَكِنَ أَكْثَرَ ٱلنَّاسِ لَا يَشْكُرُونَ men are not grateful; أَنَّاسَ مَنْهُمْ يَحْشُونَ مَانَّا portion of them fear men.

In the case of regular animated plurals, especially masculine plurals, it is not unusual to make the verb agree both in number and gender, even though it precede its subject, as جَاءَو ٱلنَّاصِرُونَ the helpers came.

SECOND CONCORD.

The adjective follows its substantive, and agrees with it in gender, number and case.

If the substantive be definite, the adjective is likewise definite; if the substantive be indefinite, the adjective is indefinite, except where a proper name is formed by the combination of an indefinite substantive with a definite adjective.

In this case M. de Sacy supposes an ellipse, and treats the adjective as in construction, the substantive with which it agrees being understood.

Norre. A substantive is definite when it is preceded by the article or has an affixed pronoun. Proper names are also definite. When, however, the substantive is plural and inanimate, the adjective which qualifies it, or the pronouns which refer to it, take the form of the feminine singular.

Second Concord.

Demonstrative Pronouns precede the substantive they qualify, and require that the article be prefixed to it.

EXAMPLES.

- (1) بسطان جميل a beautiful garden.
- (2) أَلْجَمِيلُ the beautiful garden.
- (3) إبراهيم الأمدين (3) Abraham the faithful.
- (4) بيت المقدّس the holy house, i. e. Jerusalem.
- (5) أَبُوابٌ كَبِيرَةُ (5) large gates.
- (6) هذا الرجل this man.

In some cases we have a peculiar concord of substantive and adjective. Where a phrase is appended to a substantive expressive of the quality of a second substantive bearing relation to the first, the adjective which expresses the character of the second substantive usually agrees in definiteness or indefiniteness, and also in case, with the first, but in gender and number with the second substantive.

Syntax of Numerals. 149

entered the house of the men whose wives are wise.

Cardinal numerals from three to ten inclusive may be treated either as substantives or adjectives: if they are regarded as substantives, they precede the substantive which they qualify, and thus convert it into the latter of two substantives; if as adjectives, they follow the substantive and agree with it like other adjectives. They agree in gender with the substantive they qualify in both cases.

From ten upwards to a hundred the units agree in gender, but the whole number is treated as a substantive; the following substantive, however, is in the accusative singular, thus acting as a qualitative adjunct to the numeral.

The numerals of hundreds and thousands are substantives requiring the substantive qualified in the genitive singular.

In a number composed of different classes the name of the thing numbered is placed after the last numeral in the number and case required by the construction

Syntax of Numerals.

To express the date of a year cardinal numbers are used and agree with سَنَدَ

The order of the numerals is units, tens, hundreds, and lastly thousands, the classes being all connected by the copula . The numerals are all regarded as the latter of two substantives after سَنَة. Hence مَنْ does not take the definite article.

Ordinal numbers are treated as other adjectives.

EXAMPLES.

ثَلَاتٌ بَيُوتٍ or بَيُوتٌ ثَلَاتٌ three houses. أَحَدَ عَشَرَ كَوْكَبًا *eleven stars. fifty-nine fountains. و خَمْسُونَ عَيْنًا a hundred servants. مَ*أَيَّنَا خَدَّامٍ two hundred servants. ق thoo hundred servants.

Comparatives and Superlatives.

151

ثُمَّ دَخَلَتْ سَنَّة سِتٍ وَ تِسْعِينَ وَ ثَلَائُمَأَيَّةٍ وَ أَلَفُ then began the year 1396.

I passed the مَرَرْفٌ بِالْجَبَلِ الْخَامِسِ وَهُو أَحْمَر fifth mountain, it was red.

Adjectives in the Comparative Degree admit no variation for number or gender. See p. 45.

When the term of comparison is not expressed the superlative agrees like an ordinary adjective; when it is expressed the superlative is invariable both in number and in gender. The construction of the substantive following it is in this case that of the latter of two substantives.

EXAMPLES.

Hind is handsomer than هَنْدُ أَجْمَلْ مِنْ زِينَبٍ

Zeineb.

fortune.

He (God) is the best of هَوَ (ٱلَّلَهُ) خَيْر ٱلْحَاكِمِينَ judges.

The relative agrees with its antecedent like an ordinary adjective, but it is not usual (see p. 61) to employ the form of the genitive case. In using both genitive and accusative it is the practice to supply the pronoun corresponding in gender and number to the relative after the verb.

EXAMPLES.

أَلَكَتَابِ ٱلَّذِى كَتَبَتَهُ the book which I wrote. أَلَشْجُرا ٱلَّتِى شَغْتَهَا the trees which I saw. تَحَمَّدُ ٱلَّذِى أَتَيتَ لَهُ ٱلْكَتَابَ I gave the book.

CONCURRENCE OF SUBSTANTIVES.

The latter of two substantives is usually placed in the genitive case. There may be a series of such substantives in connected sequence, each depending on the one preceding it. In these cases the last substantive alone receives the tanwin and admits the definite article. The influence of this article, or of a pronominal affix to this last substantive, or of a proper name in the last place is retrospective, and affects all the foregoing substantives. See Article.

EXAMPLES.

وَرَعَ أَرْضَ زَيدٍ he sowed the field of Zeid. أَخَذَ حِصَانَ إَبْنِهِ he took his son's horse. أَحَدَ حِصَانَ إِبْنِهِ he ruled the kingdom of the sons of Israel.

The word كل, which is used as equivalent to the adjective all, is always constructed as a substantive, and requires the substantive which follows it to be placed in the genitive.

Ex. إَسْتَعْجِلْ لِيَسْمَعَ كُلُ ٱلْإِنْسَانِ hasten that all the world may hear.

The participle of a transitive verb may be treated as a substantive, and be followed by a noun in the genitive case, as اعَلَمُوا انْكُمْ عَيرَ مُعْجِزِى ٱللَّهُ not escape God: lit. ye are not escapers of God.

The Arabs admit an apposition of substantives to a very large extent. These substantives may be classed under five heads. Reflective, consisting of words like نَضَعُنُهُ, and similar terms to which the pronouns are affixed, as تَالَ مُحَمَّدُ نَفْسَهُ Mohammed himself said.

Determinative, as Zeid, thy brother came.
 Definitive, as
 Zeid, his learning profited me.

4. Partitive, as

I ate the loaf, i. e. a third of it.

5. Restrictive, as the multitude, viz. those who قَالَ ٱلْمَلَا الَّذِينَ إِسْتَكْبَرُوا the multitude, viz. those who were proud, said.

SUBJECT AND PREDICATE.

The subject of a verb usually follows it, and is in the nominative case. Not unfrequently, however, the subject of a sentence is placed first as a nominative absolute, and the rest of the sentence constructed without reference to this nominative.

Ex. تَحَمَّدُ جَاءً لَهُ ٱلْقَرَانِ مِن ٱللَّهُ Mohammed, the Koran came to him from God.

When the subject and predicate of a sentence are both nouns, or the subject a pronoun and the predicate a noun, and are connected merely by the verb substantive understood, they are both in the nominative case, as مَنْتَ شَرِيفٌ Zeid is learned; أَنْتَ شَرِيفٌ thou art أَنْتَ شَرِيفٌ God, he is the true one.

When the subject and predicate are connected by J, or one of its family, the subject is in the nominative, the predicate in the accusative. The verbs which thus affect the predicate are as follows:

ن ن سَارَ it is not. it is not. it ceased; it ceased standing; it ceased standing; it it ceased standing; it he was young; he continued; it ceased; it ceased standing; it ceased; it cea tive Lo.

Ex. أَمْسَى بَكُر ; Zeid was rising كَانَ زَيْد قَائِمًا Ex. أَمْسَى بَكُر ; Zeid was rising مَا زَالَ أَحْمَد فَاضَلًا ; Bekr was watching سَاهِرًا مَا زَالَ أَحْمَد فَاضَلًا ; Bekr was watching مَا زَالَ أَحْمَد فَاضَلًا ; Ahmed continued good ; نَفَتَ زَيْد نَاطَقًا ; Leid continued to stand speaking ; مَا دَامُ ٱللَّهُ مَوْجُودًا ; the existence of God is not coaval with yours.

Particles.

When the particle , or any one of its family is prefixed to the subject of a sentence, the effect is to throw the subject into the accusative case and the predicate into the nominative. The particles which do this are the following:

مرتبع and الله expletive particles to add force to a statement.

and لَكُنَّ but. متع as if. would that. perhaps.

EXAMPLES.

يَّ زَيداً قَايِم Zeid is standing. آَتَ أَحْمَدَ نَاسِكُ I have heard that Ahmed is devoted to God.

ممرو حَكِيم لَكِنَّ إِبَنَهُ جَاهِلُ Amrou is voise, but مَمرو مَكِيم آلكُنَ إِبَنَهُ جَاهِلُ

P

Particles.

تَيتَ الْجَهُولَ حَكِيمً would that the foolish man were wise.

The same rule applies when one of the affixed pronouns is attached to these particles, as

Transitive Verbs in Arabic, as in other languages, govern the accusative case, as أطيعوا ألله obey God

Certain Verbs, from their meaning, involve and govern a double accusative. These Verbs are ten.

he thought; حسب he reckoned. أو he thought; أو he thought or sano.

The construction of a double accusative is not infrequent after other verbs also.

mention Can

A neuter verb often becomes equivalent to a transitive one by the prefix of the preposition \leftarrow to the succeeding noun.

If a verb in the active governs a double accusative, it is not uncommon to retain one of these accusatives as the object of the verb when the active voice is changed into the passive, thus, أَظَنَتُ زَيداً قَالَماً I thought Zeidl was standing, may become in the passive خَلَنَ زَيد قَالَماً Zeid was thought to be standing.

The usage of the accusative in Arabic is very extensive.

It serves as a noun of action cognate to the action of the verb, as أَصَرَبْت ضَرَبْا I struck a stroke;
 أَعَدَ جَلُوسًا he sat in session.

2. It is the object of the Transitive Verb. with its family require, and other verbs admit,

a double accusative.

Ex. رَكَبْنَا حِمَارًا we mounted a donkey. I thought Zeid skilful.

The pronominal affixes to the particle إياً, and the subject of أن and its family, are in the accusative case. See above.

3. Adverbs of Time, Place, Cause, Motive, Definition, &c., are expressed in the accusative.

Ex. مَسَّا in the morning; مَسَّا in the evening; مَسَّا مَعَدًا to-morrow; مَجَلَسًا in the court; مَجَلَسًا to-morrow غَدًا of session; تَحَتَّ below; which last two,

though the ultima is accented with dammah, are potentially accusatives.

EXAMPLES.

4. Adverbs descriptive of the state of body or mind of the subject, as آيَدُ رَاكِبَ¹ رَيْدُ رَاكِبَ¹ Eeid came ridiny; Zeid came ridiny; I saw Zeid with joy: or even of the predicate, as رَكَبْتَ ٱلْفَرْسَ مَسْرِجًا saddled; مَرَرْتَ بِمَحَمَّد جَالِسًا seated.

5. j in the sense of \smile throws the noun which it couples into the accusative. The accusative is also used in certain cases after \tilde{y}_{j} and other particles of exception. See below.

Р5

EXAMPLES.

I went with Amrou. سَرْتٌ وَ عَمَرًا I went with Amrou.

Note. If j could be used as a simple copula, the construction with the accusative is inadmissible.

6. In the negative of genus expressed by \checkmark the accusative is employed. The force of this negative of genus is somewhat the same as that of the vulgar English expression never a. In this negative of genus the noun negative of genus must be indefinite, the predicate must be likewise indefinite, and the subject must precede the predicate.

Examples.

there is not a man in the house. لا رجل في الدار

there is no ascender of the moun-

7. In an interjectional sentence the accusative is often placed first as an interjection.

Accusative Case.

Ex. تَذَكَرُونَ how little do you remember! سَبْحَانَة praise be to him (God).

 8. The accusative is often used elliptically as an imperative phrase, as تعوداً rise, تعوداً sit.

The Arabs are accustomed to subjoin the Present Tense with a very loose construction to a Past, indicating a purpose or action dependent upon that Past Tense; also to use it after verbs indicating the commencement or continuance of an action, or an approach to the accomplishment of a design.

EXAMPLES.

أَتَى إِلَى عَينِ مَامَ يَشَرَبُ لَهُ مَعَينِ مَامَ يَشْرَبُ لَمَ عَينِ مَامَ يَشْرَبُ لَمَ اللَّهُ يَعْلَمُهُ بِذَلكَ he sent to announce this to him. يَعْلَمُهُ عَلَى تَارُونَ يَقُولُ Karun began to say. Zeid continued to send. تَانَعْ تَارَقْتَ لَالْغَسْ تَزَهْتَى بَخَلاً ,حَاشًا ,سُوَّى ,غَدِرَ ,إَلَّا :Particles of Exception : . . عَدًا

Of these particles إلاً alone is strictly a particle; and مَوَى are more properly nouns, أَسَوَى and غَيَر verbs. The construction of الا is threefold:

The following noun must necessarily be in the accusative. This is the case in affirmative sentences where the noun excepted is included in the preceding noun, as قَامَ ٱلْقَوْمَ إِلاَّ زَيداً assembly rose except Zeid, Zeid being one of the assembly.

2. If the sentence be negative or interrogative, and the exception be included in the preceding noun, the noun excepted may be either in the nominative or the accusative, as with the exception of Zeid, Zeid being one of them.

إلا زَيْدُ the assembly did not rise مَا قَامَ ٱلْقَوْمَ إِلا زَيْدًا

Particles of Exception. 165

what is the فَمَا ٱلْحَدَوَةُ ٱلدَّنَيَا فِي ٱلْأَخْرَةِ. إِلاَ قَلِيلٌ what is the life of the present world in the last day but a small portion?

If however the noun excepted be not included in the preceding noun from which the exception is made, the noun following \tilde{y} must be in the accusative, as the noun following \tilde{y} must be in the accusative, as the assembly did not rise, but donkeys; donkeys not being included in the preceding substantive \tilde{e}_{eq} .

3. When الله has the adverbial sense only, it produces no effect upon the construction of the sentence, thus we say, مَا رَأَيَتَ إِلاً زَيدًا saw only Zeid.

Of سَوَى it may be observed that they themselves follow the construction of nouns after \mathbb{X}_{i} , so that we may suppose \mathbb{X}_{i} always understood before them, and accent them accordingly. As has been remarked above, they are properly substantives, and retain the construction of substantives, governing the noun which follows them in the genitive case. أَخَلُ , أَخَلُ he described 166 Particles of Exception.

he omitted, are properly verbs, and govern the accusative case; they may however be treated in affirmative sentences as prepositions, and the noun following them put in the genitive.

he excepted, is likewise properly a verb, but in affirmative sentences it admits the same alternative as عَدًا and اعتزاد. It is not used in negative sentences.

Demosthenes, Select Private Orations of. After the Text of DINDORF, with the various Beadings of BRISKE and BRIXER. With English Notes. For the use of Schools. By C. T. PENROSE, A.M. Second Edition. 12mo. 4s.

A Complete Latin Grammar. Second Edition. Very much enlarged, and adapted for the use of University Students. By J. W. DONALDSON, D.D. 8vo. 14s.

The enlarged Edition of the Latin Grammar has been prepared with the same object as the corresponding work on the Greek Language. It is, however, especially designed to serve as a convenient handbook for those students who wish to acquire the habit of writing Latin; and with this view it is furnished with an Antibarbarus, with a full discussion of the most important synonyms, and with a variety of information not generally contained in works of this description.

A Complete Greek Grammar. Second Edition.

Very much enlarged and adapted for the use of University Students. By J. W. DONALDSON, D.D. 8vo. 16s.

This enlarged Edition has been prepared with the intention of placing within the reach of Students at the Universities, and in the highest classes at Schools, a Manual of Instruction and Reference, which, without exceeding the limits of the most popular Works of the kind, would exhibit a more exact and philosophical arrangement of the materials than any similar book; would connect itself more immediately with the researches of comparative Philologers; and would contain the sort of information which the Author's long experience as a Teacher and Examiner has indicated to him as most likely to meet the actual wants of those who are engaged in the critical study of the best Greek authors.

Without being formally based on any German Work, it has been written with constant reference to the latest and most esteemed of Greek Grammars used on the Continent.

Varronianus. A Critical and Historical Introduction to the Philological Study of the Latin Language. Third Edition, considerably enlarged. By J. W. DONALDSON, D.D. 8vo. 16s.

Independently of the original matter which will be found in almost every page, it is believed that this book presents a collection of known facts respecting the old languages of Italy which will be found in no single work, whether British or foreign, and which must be gleaned from a considerable number of rare and expensive publications; and while the lists of Oscan and Ernstean glosses, and the reprint of fragments and inscriptions, may render the treatise an indispensable addition to the dictionary, and a convenient manual for the professed student of Latin, it is hoped that the classical traveller in Italy will find the information amassed and arranged in these pages, sufficient to spare him the trouble of carrying with him a voluminous library of reference in regard to the subjects of which it treats.
